In New York—first time there or anywhere—a man is arrested for that which has been considered no crime among MEN. The strange part is that this man is worth eighteen millions, according to credit agencies.

To be immoral in New York and some other States is a crime—for women. In cases of immorality, the man is asked what he knows about it—the woman is arrested and locked up, the man never. But this time a woman sitting on the bench suggested to another judge that, as two women had been convicted for immorality, it might be well to inquire about the men.

The man accordingly is accused. Justice will, at least, go through the motions of pretending that what is immoral and forbidden for women is also immoral and to be punished in men.

The case is referred to as the "single standard" case.

However, the world is far from a single standard, and will so remain for a long time.

Women are a thousand times better than men, and men admit it when their laws demand of women what they well know they could not demand of men.

This column wants to print what people WANT to read, with a thin mixture of what people ought to want to read. The single standard news will interest everybody. The fact that Henry G. Dottenheim, lawyer, held thirteen diamonds in one hand and scored 716 points at bridge will interest millions that ought to be interested in things more serious.

But as they are interested, they must know that Mr. Dottenheim, for the first time in the history of bridge, had his thirteen diamonds. It was a rare hand all around. Somebody bid 4, no trumps; another bid up to 6 hearts. Dottenheim bid 7 diamonds, was doubled, then redoubled. Figure the score for yourself. One hundred and ninety-six below the line, 520 above.

Mark Luescher, personally interested, says, "Since you mentioned the educated crow with its life insured for $50,000, you should mention the fact that it can be seen at the New York Hippodrome." That's true.

Men lived with animals for a hundred thousand years and more. Ask your children how many animals among the lot are really well known, to exercise their memory.

There is the educated crow, with its life insured for fifty thousand. Jonah's whale. Balaam's ass, also highly educated; the vulture eating the man that brought down fire from the gods, the too well educated snake in the garden, three-headed dog at the gates of Hell, geese that saved Rome from capture, grateful lion that refused to eat the man that pulled the thorn out of his foot, raven that fed Elijah, Job's collection, war horse, leviathan ostrich, etc.

The dog that went to sleep with the seven sleepers, and miraculously woke when they did, the bear that fought with La Hire, when La Hire prayed, saying, "I ask no favors, but if you cannot help me, do not help the bear."

What others can you think of? There are not so many altogether.

A most stupid tax was the tax on doors and windows that shut out sunlight and fresh air from millions of people in Europe. A little worse would be the proposed tax on books, in this country. A tax that shuts out knowledge is worse even than one shutting out air and sunlight. For with knowledge men will get other things in time.

Moving picture concerns are putting a "morality clause" in actors' contracts. If the actor gets into moral trouble, accused of killing a lady, or anything of that kind, for instance, the contract dies.

We can't have too much morality, but some great stars in history would have been snuffed out early if history had "cancelled" them for moral reasons. Napoleon's career would have ended when he turned away Josephine; Alexander's when he killed his best friend and celebrated that outrageous wedding; Caesar's when the world discovered that he was the father of little Caesarian, son of Cleopatra; Lord Nelson's on account of Lady Hamilton; Wagner's on various occasions. Pitt's when he entered Parliament drunk. Even our good Benjamin Franklin would have had to fight to hold his job in history's theatre.

SINN FEIN TROOPS ARMING

Urged by Commanders to Be on Alert to Prevent British Devastation

By DENIS O'CONNELL.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Sept. 23.—That the Irish Republican army is preparing for the resumption of operations, is indicated by an address just sent to the troops by the commander-in-chief.

Whether our troops will be recalled to active service is still in doubt," says the address. "But this fact should only help to emphasize the necessity for all ranks to hold themselves in a state of constant preparedness for the immediate resumption of hostilities.

"The safety of the Irish nation and the security of the strong position we had attained depend upon constant vigilance, strict discipline and zealous work among the officers and men of the Irish republican army.

"The work of training the organization must be pushed ahead with all possible energy and all necessary provision should be made for sudden emergency.

"If the Irish army is called to take the field they must be able to give a good account of themselves and overcome obstacles more formidable than previously.

ARBUCKLE AGAIN IN COURT

Police Court Hearing Resumed to Determine If He Would Be Held on Murder Charge

By Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—The spotlight of testimony again today turned toward the tragedy of Virginia Rappe, film actress, to determine whether Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, film comedian, would be tried on the charge of murder or on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the girl's death.

It is charged Miss Rappe suffered fatal injuries from Arbuckle while she was his guest at a drinking party at the Hotel St. Francis here September 5.

Arbuckle this afternoon was to be taken from jail, where he is held without bail, to a police court for continuation of his preliminary hearing, which will decide whether he shall be held to answer to the Superior Court on the murder charge sworn against him by another guest at the party, Mrs. Bambina M. Delmont.

A Grand Jury indictment already returned accuses him of manslaughter.

SAW BRUISES ON BODY.

The first session of Arbuckle's preliminary hearing, held late yesterday, was adjourned without his attorneys having asked a question in cross-examination or giving any indication of what their plans for his defence might be.

Attaches of the district attorney's office said they had expected the defence, to occupy considerable time in cross-examination and had no other witnesses ready to put on the stand before today.

The testimony of the three prosecution witnesses already before the court, a nurse and two doctors, was that they observed bruises on Miss Rappe's arms and body.

The two doctors said death was due to an internal organ probably being injured by external force.

MANY WOMEN SPECTATORS.

Dr. Shelby F. Strange, who performed the autopsy on the body of Miss Rappe, said he found bruises on her right arm and that on the left arm was a scar which might have been caused by a hypodermic needle.

Great crowds attended yesterday's court session and police guarded aisles adjacent to the court room. Spectators were, in the main, women, the hearing being held in Judge Sylvain Lazarus' women's court, and authorities ruling that women should have the preference over men in obtaining admittance.

Many of the women spectators were on hand yesterday five hours before the hearing opened and several brought basket lunches.

Today's session of court was announced to begin at 2 p. m.

POLICE SAY WOMAN ATTACKER TOOK DRUG

Victim Near Death, Physician Gives Up Blood in Effort to Save Her

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—Jealousy today prompted a beautiful young divorcee to attempt to slay a wealthy heiress, her rival for the affections of a handsome exporter who has an office in Wall street, and then, in dramatic fashion, to blow out her own brains.

Miss Mildred Hanan, twenty-four-year-old granddaughter of the multi-millionaire shoe manufacturer, John B. Hanan, and daughter of the late Alfred F. Hanan, was shot twice and seriously wounded in front of No. 85 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, by Mrs. Grace Lawes, a jealous rival, who then ended her own life. Miss Hanan was being escorted to an automobile by John S. Borland, exporter, after a call upon friends, when accosted by Mrs. Lawes.

Miss Hanan was hurried to the Long Island Hospital, where it was found one bullet had entered her breast and possibly punctured a lung, while another plowed its way through the flesh of her left arm.

BELIEVE WOMAN TOOK DRUG.

A blood transfusion was made today in an effort to save Miss Hanan's life. Blood was given by Dr. Richard Benner, resident physician at Long Island Hospital.

There was slight hope held out today for the recovery of Miss Hanan. The girl's mother, sister and Borland were at the hospital when the operation was performed.

That Mrs. Lawes committed her crime while under the influence of some powerful drug was the belief expressed by the police. In her hand bag were found 28 grains of morphine.

In addition Mrs. Katherine Strong, Mrs. Lawes' ever

PETERS FAVORS COLLINS FOR MAYOR

Mayor Peters has definitely entered the political ring as a supporter of Walter Collins as the Good Government candidate for mayor.

At a meeting of the directors of the Good Government Association, the Mayor and other prominent political leaders of Boston, held in the Exchange Club, the Mayor came positively to the front in behalf of the City Councillor.

Peters urged the association to endorse the candidacy of Collins, on the ground that the candidate has been an ardent supporter of the measures favored by the association, and had fought for them on the floor of the council chamber.

This fact as well as the identity of the men attending the meeting at the Exchange Club leaked out today despite the fact that every one at the gathering was pledged to secrecy.

It was learned that Peters told the directors of the association as well

J. WESTON ALLEN TO PROBE BANK CHARGES

The former State treasurers are Fred J. Burrell and Charles L. Burrill.

The allegation, it is understood, is that they overdrew their accounts at the bank and never made the excess withdrawals good.

er No. 300 Schermerhorn street, opposite the scene of the shooting, said who saw Mrs. Lawes, shortly before midnight, sit upon a door step, open her hand bag, and take from her hand bag something which resembled a tea cup, into which she emptied what might have been a powder or liquid, and drink it.

Mrs. Strong said the woman paced up and down the street for some time, evidently meditating her murder plan. The draught appeared to stimulate the woman, Mrs. Strong said.

JEALOUSY MOTIVE.

Borland, the only witness of the shooting, admitted to the police that jealousy of him probably was the cause of the tragedy.

Mrs. Lawes has been living at the Vanderbilt hotel, was a well-to-do divorcee of San Francisco.

A check up of events shows Mrs. Lawes evidently had fain in wait for her quarry, having stayed in the basement of the Schermerhorn apartment house possibly more than an hour for her intended victim.

Miss Hanan, Borland said, recognized Mrs. Lawes immediately.

"Oh, there's Grace," she said, in evident surprise.

Mrs. Lawes was fingering at her handbag. As she reached the step of the apartment house, she cried:

"Now I have you!"

WOMAN OPENS FIRE.

Immediately Mrs. Lawes opened fire. Miss Hanan staggered at the first shot. She collapsed at the second. Mrs. Lawes stepped back a pace or two and then sent a bullet crushing into her own brain.

The wounded heiress scrambled to her feet with blood streaming from her bare arm—she was in evening clothes—staggered to the stoop of an apartment house a few doors away and sat down.

Policeman Murray rushed up and found Miss Hanan on the stoop moaning. Borland was nearby. An ambulance was summoned. Both women were sent to the nearest hospital.

Borland was taken to a police station and questioned.

Two letters, written by Mrs. Lewis, and found in her handbag by the police, follow:

"Mrs. M. T. Dittmar, No. 518 Walnut street, San Francisco, Calif.:

"Mother darling:

"You never can understand what I have gone through here. Don't try to learn. It is fast. I am too tired and ill to try to overcome the great obstacles I have placed in my own way. Too much high life in New York, and the pace is too fast. The liquor here has driven me crazy, mother dear. Forgive me and forget and remember to pray for my soul. Love to all and think of me always. Say to yourself always 'a good, sweet daughter.'

"Lovingly, Grace."

LETTER ASKS CREMATION.

"Miss Billie Williams, No. 514 Madison avenue, New York city:

"Dear Billie—In case of an accident to me, will you kindly notify Mr. Walder Dunnington at No. 5 Nassau street, New York city; telephone 1044 Rector. Also, same name, No. 437 Madison avenue, Madison Square Hotel. Have him cable Ethel to take charge of my affairs. Send me home to California cremated. Make it easy for my darling, sweet mother. Don't let mother, dear, know the truth. I cannot stand this sordid tinsel life any longer.

"The Hanans are too frail and furious for me. Forgive me, Billie, for all my mistakes and remember me as sweet and clean as I was at No. 270 Their avenue. I have been drinking too much liquor and there is nothing but conversation on all sides. Notify Mrs. M. T. Dittmar, No. 518 Walnut street, San Francisco.

"Send my ruby ring to John Borland. I told him to give it to Mildred; gave it to him yesterday. I also drew $600 of my own money out of the Harriman National Bank. This is in my purse. Spent $400 a few days ago. My fur coat is at Lexington avenue and Fifty-ninth street. The name is Paul.

"The black leather jewel case is in the safe. I sold the ticket for my other ring. All my trunks are at the Hotel Vanderbilt storeroom. Some of my other clothes and togs are at the Hanans'. Send my dearest love to mother. Grace."

IN WAIT FOR WEEK.

Police investigation disclosed that the tragedy was the climax of a week-long vigil maintained by Mrs. Lawes in front of the apartment house on Park avenue where Miss Hanan lived for a week. Police say the beautiful divorcee had been going to the address night after night in a closed automobile and waiting for the appearance of the heiress.

Last night Miss Hanan was entertaining some friends, including Borland and Miss Dorothy Gottschalk, at dinner when the telephone rang.

"Who was calling, Rose?" Miss Hanan asked the maid as she hung up the receiver.

"Mrs. Lawes," was the reply.

No attention was then paid to the incident, but it later developed that Mrs. Lawes had questioned the maid upon the identity of Miss Hanan's guests and had learned Borland was among them.

The theory is that Mrs. Lawes guessed the girl was proceeding to Miss Gottschalk's home in Brooklyn—Miss Hanan taking her guest home in a car, evidently she armed herself with a revolver, took a subway train for Brooklyn, went straight to the Schermerhorn street address, the home of Miss Gottschalk, and hid herself in the basement.

Miss Hanan and Borland remained with Miss Gottschalk about an hour, making it shortly after 1 a. m. today when they came down the steps to take the automobile for home.

Miss Hanan is telling the story of the attempted assassination, said:

THREATENING LETTERS SENT.

"We had just emerged from the vestibule when I saw Mrs. Lawes to the left of the entrance. The next thing I heard was three pistol reports. I dropped to the sidewalk and when I got up saw blood running from my arm. I ran a hundred feet and collapsed. I then heard another shot fired.

"Mr. Borland picked me up and carried me to the stoop at No. 33 Schermerhorn street. A policeman came running up and Mr. Borland asked him to get an ambulance."

Borland admitted to police he had been "out" with both Miss Hanan and Mrs. Lawes a number of times during the last few months. He admitted Mrs. Lawes had sent several threatening letters to Miss Hanan. He conceded it liked Miss Hanan very much as a friend," but asked whether he was engaged to the heiress, he replied:

"Oh, no."

It was said Borland was introduced to Miss Hanan by the divorcee.

Borland lives at No. 125 West Fourth street, Manhattan. He has export offices at No. 11 Broadway.

FAGAN AND HIS BRIDE APPEAR TOGETHER

Supposedly Estranged Couple at New York Hotel Seem to Be Fully Reconciled

New York, Sept. 23.—The mystery that covers the marital relations of Richard Fagan, 18-year-old Dartmouth College student, and his bride of the same age, Katherine Stevens Fagan, which has furnished society with almost endless opportunity for speculation, was revived here by the appearance together at a hotel of the supposedly estranged couple, apparently fully reconciled.

Mrs. Fagan, who is heir to the $15,000,000 estate of Calvin Stevens, eccentric Broad street recluse, left her husband shortly after their marriage last spring for Reno to obtain a divorce. Later she left and went to Paris, declaring "Reno is too dull." And now she has re-appeared with Fagan, apparently on the best of terms.

Friends and relatives of the girl, however, insist that there has been no reconciliation, and that she is still persisting in her efforts to obtain a separation from her youthful husband. Both parties, however, have vanished since they were seen at the hotel together, and neither has been found.

DE VALERA NOT TO BE BEATEN BY TRICKS

you wholehearted support in the one certainty in the situation."

Irish Peace Advocates Not Feeling So Hopeful

By Universal Service.

Galtech, Scotland, Sept. 23. — A copy of the draft of the British Cabinet's reply to De Valera will be sent to every member of the Irish Cabinet. This means that all will be held responsible for the final draft of De Valera's answer. It is expected that this will delay the Irish reply for a week or more.

It is learned that the present draft is likely to be the government's final letter. The ministers are debating the capacity in which the Irish representatives will attend the conference as well as the "basis" for the conference.

WANT PLAIN STATEMENT.

It is felt by the members of the British cabinet that De Valera's letter admits of more than one interpretation on these points, and De Valera will be asked to make a plain and definite statement as to the basis on which he is willing to confer.

The attitude of the government is that the only possible basis is the continuance of Ireland as a part of the British empire. Those hoping for peace gather little consolation from the Galtech meeting, as a strong section of the cabinet wishes to sternly insist upon the abandonment of De Valera's sovereignty claims an essential preliminary to any conference. They are pressing the view that the government cannot bandy words indefinitely.

They complain that De Valera is making no concessions whatever and profess alarm that he will bring up the question of sovereignty as soon as the conference meets, and nullify everything.

On the other hand appeals to the cabinet not to break off the negotiations do not fall on deaf ears.

The present time is, therefore, a period of suspense and things are not nearly so hopeful after the Galtech meeting as they were before.

Confidant of De Valera Sure He Will Outwit Premier

By DENIS O'CONNELL.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Sept. 23.—"Lloyd George beat President Wilson by tricks, but he is not going to beat De Valera that way."

Thus declared a prominent member of the Irish republican army and intimate friend of De Valera, with whom I had a long conversation.

"You journalists and probably many people are dissatisfied with the note writing, but if once De Valera gets down from his position he is going to be beaten all along the way," he continued.

"Hitherto we people have believed that Lloyd George was playing straight with us in this game. We trusted his honesty. But now there is a doubt growing up amongst us that he is at the old game again, playing upon our desire for peace and also having in mind the Washington conference and making the British position good there.

"Don't you be deceived by anything you see on the surface nowadays. We are ready for peace, but it will be such a peace as only an honorable nation can accept.

J. WESTON ALLEN TO PROBE BANK CHARGES

Transactions of Burrell and Burrill With Cosmopolitan Trust Under Fire

treasurers have just been ascertained and will be submitted to the attorney-general for such action as he may think wise to take."

ACCOUNTS OVERDRAWN.

The "facts" referred to by the bank commissioner were discovered when his agents were examining the books of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company in the process of liquidating its affairs. The investigation is still on.

It is stated that Allen's allegation is that while Fred J. Burrell was State treasurer he overdrew his account at the Cosmopolitan to the extent of $7,000, and that "somebody connected with the bank took care of the matter with a note, and that Charles L. Burrill overdrew his account between $700 and $500.

Fred J. Burrell today denied that he had overdrawn his account or that there was anything irregular in his dealings with the Cosmopolitan while he was State Treasurer in 1920, at which time he was also head of an advertising agency. He resigned when an investigation was started to prove that he deposited large sums of State money in banks using his advertising agency.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

Charles L. Burrill was State Treasurer for the five years preceding 1920, and when he gave up the office became an unsuccessful candidate for the office of Lieutenant-governor.

He has been quoted to the effect that he will run again next year, and has also been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Boston mayoralty.

Bank Commissioner Allen's contention is understood to be that it was highly improper for a State official empowered to favor banks with State deposits to accept such favors from any banker.

During the incumbency of Fred J. Burrell, it is asserted, there was at one time $750,000 of State money in the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, and there is still a considerable amount of State money tied up there.

Commissioner Allen recently brought suit for $5,000,000 against President Max Mitchell and the directors of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, in behalf of the creditors.

The bank was one of those closed in the wake of the collapse of the Fonsi bubble.

Court Gives Security Firm First Claim on Swig's Home

A demurrer filed by the Guaranty Security Corporation to a bill in equity brought against it by the closed Tremont Trust Company, in which the bank sought to have the court give it priority on a mortgage made to it for $75,000 by Simon Swig, its president, over a similar note to the Guaranty for $22,000, was sustained by Judge Sanderson in Superior Court today.

This action leaves the Guaranty Security Corporation with first claim on the mortgage, which is made on Swig's house and property on Humboldt avenue, Roxbury. The court held that the bank could not have priority because their mortgage had never been recorded.

A demurrer filed by Swig, his wife, and his son, Judge Louis Swig, to the same action was overruled.

WORLD'S SPEED RECORD FLIER KILLED

Noted Frenchman Falls 650 Feet While Going at 160 Miles an Hour

Estampes, France, Sept. 23 (by the Associated Press).—Captain Bernard de Romanet, the noted French aviator, holder of the world's speed record for one kilometre, was instantly killed here today while taking part in the elimination races for the Deutsche de la Meurthe cup.

The canvas on Romanet's machine tore while he was flying more than 160 miles an hour at a height of 650 feet and the plane fell, killing the aviator. The machine was a biplane from which the lower plane had been removed for the sake of speed.

Captain de Romanet's world record for speed was established on November 4, last, when at the Buc Airdrome, near Paris, he flew a measured kilometre at the rate of 309 kilometres 12 metres per hour (about 192 miles), covering the distance in 11 65-100 seconds. He was a competitor in the James Gordon Bennett Cup Race in France last September, which was won by Sadi Lecointe, and in the following month established a new world's record for one kilometre, in 12.3 seconds.

His record was eclipsed by Lecointe the following day with a flight in 12.1 seconds, but this was in turn shattered by De Romanet in his notable dash of November 4.

POLICE TO GRILL NEW GIRL WITNESS IN BACK BAY MOVIE CASE

SAW MRS. FRANCIS IN FLAT

The Back Bay police are planning to question pretty Bernice Frazer as to her knowledge of the occurrences in the apartment of Mrs. Benjamin O. Lord, No. 58 Westland avenue, on the day Mrs. Anna Francis of Columbus avenue, "vamp" in a film drama, charges she was attacked by Burt R. Cornell of Brighton, director of the picture.

Miss Frazer is now recuperating at Massachusetts General Hospital following the removal of her appendix. When she is sufficiently strong the police will visit her and ask her what she knows about the charges made by Mrs. Francis, who is known in "movie" circles as Anna Andre.

OTHERS IN APARTMENT.

Miss Frazer was staying at Mrs. Lord's apartment on the day of the alleged attack. Mrs. Lord, whose screen name is Sally Trask, says she and Miss Frazer were in the apartment at the time Mrs. Francis claims she was attacked.

Mrs. Francis admits that Mrs. Lord and another woman, whose name she does not recall, were there at the time, but insists that despite the presence of these other women, Cornell attacked her after giving her three drinks of whiskey and ginger ale, believed by her to have been "doped." Cornell denies that he ever poured whiskey in a glass for Mrs. Francis unless at her request.

Mrs. Francis now places the date of the alleged attack as July 12, although in the police complaint she said it took place July 2.

MRS. FRANCIS TO PUSH CASE.

Mrs. Francis is much upset over the publicity connected with the case but says she will go through with the charges in Roxbury court next Tuesday. She says she probably would not have instituted the charges against Mr. Cornell but for threats she alleges he made to her over the telephone. She claims he told her that she was "a little fool" to tell her husband what happened at the Lord apartment.

Another woman who figures in the case is Edna Sicenk, otherwise known as "Jane Page." It is said that Miss Sicenk will testify relative to certain spirited conversations Cornell had with her. Miss Sicenk is said to have been a former sweetheart of Ralph Taylor, in whose Huntington avenue suite Cornell was arrested.

A spirited defence of Cornell was made by pretty Miss Dorothy Lloyd of No. 1534 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, soloist of the Church of the Advent, a member of the motion picture company that Mr. Cornell was directing. "We are strong in our praise of him," said Miss Lloyd. "We believe that the charges of Mrs. Francis are without foundation in fact. I have always found Mr. Cornell a perfect gentleman in every particular, and I know the other women who were taking part in the production of the film regard him very highly.

Divorce Suit Is Latest Tragic Act in Drama of Sprague Family

Marital Wrangle Which Involves Parentage of Child Marks Further Workings of Nemesis Dogging Family.

The grim Nemesis which ever since the murder of Amasa Sprague, uncle of Rhode Island's famous War Governor, William Sprague, had dogged the Sprague family, is at work afresh.

No one, says the tradition that started in 1845, two years after the killing of Amasa, who comes into close touch with the Sprague family can escape the fate that hounds those of Sprague blood.

The latest act of the long drawn-out drama is now running fast to its climax in a divorce court in Providence, R. I., where for more than two generations Governor Sprague was the local tutelary diety, the ideal of young men, the envy of older ones.

The leading figure in the court tragedy, for it is a tragedy of shattered happiness and marred marital hopes, is the beautiful Mrs. Avis Weed Sprague Borda, who is seeking to free herself from the bonds that bind her to Wenceslao Borda, an enormously wealthy Porto Rican planter.

She charges her husband—her third by the way—with misconduct, and with having attempted to palm off on the world at large and his friends, a four-year-old illegitimate child as being her own dear baby. She denies that she is the mother of the boy, and insists that the official records of the New York City Board of Health be altered to clear her name.

THE "SPELL" AT WORK.

Mrs. Borda's life has been a queerly checkered one ever since her mother, a West Virginia beauty, met and married the War Time Governor of Rhode Island. At that time Mrs. Borda was Miss Avis Weed, and herself considered among the great beauties of her old home State.

Before she went to live at the famous old Sprague homestead, Canonchet, the spell had been at work. Hardly two years before Governor Sprague, returning unexpectedly home one day found his first wife, Kate Chase Sprague, daughter of Chief Justice Chase of the United States Supreme Court, entertaining United States Senator and boss of the Republican party in New York, Roscoe Conkling.

At the point of a shot gun the Governor marched the Senator off the place. His divorce from Mrs. Sprague followed.

Before she had been at Canonchet a year the then Avis Weed eloped with William Sprague, Jr., eldest son of the governor, and her stepbrother. But their married life was blighted by the same fate that had shattered the Governor's happiness, and young Sprague went west after finding out that his wife and stepsister had been as he believed, overly friendly with Col. Gerrit S. Wheaton.

WIDOW GETS MILLIONS.

The blight was still at work, for two months after he reached Seattle young William Sprague shot and killed himself.

Then Avis married Col. Wheaton, and for a time the Sprague blight seemed to lose force, for the marriage appeared to be happy. But shortly afterwards Wheaton died, leaving all his millions to his young widow.

And then came her marriage to Borda. It was a love match, for, if her first husband had left her little, her second husband had made her one of the richest widows in the United States, and Borda could match her dollar for dollar.

But their happiness did not last long. Soon society began to hear reports that she was unhappy, and then she left the Porto Rico home of her husband and returned to live in New York and Providence.

The divorce suit with its sensational charges and counter charges soon followed, showing that with Mrs. Borda at least the Sprague blight was still at work.

CITY HOSPITAL HAS 'MIRACLE WOMAN'

Unusual Patient Has Lived Six Years With a Fractured Spine

Surgeons at Boston City Hospital were astounded today when Mrs. Ollie Buford of No. 12 Readfield street, Dorchester, presented herself for an operation for a fracture of the spine sustained six years ago.

Contrary to all the rules of science, she has lived that length of time without great pain or inconvenience.

Her remarkable experience, in the opinion of surgeons, makes her one of the "miracle women" of medical annals.

Mrs. Stetson, who is 46 years old, fractured her spine at the base when she fell down a flight of stone steps.

For a few days she suffered pain, but after that was apparently as well as ever. A few weeks ago, however, dull pains began to bother her and her physician sent her to the hospital to prepare for an operation.

The injured portion of the spine is to be removed, and surgeons in attendance were confident that the result would be satisfactory and that the "miracle woman" would be as well as ever.

ROPE ADDS TO MYSTERY OF BRIDE'S DEATH

Discovery of Body Fails to Clear up Drowning of Mrs. Kettelle in Lake

Union, Ct., Sept. 23.—With the finding of the body of Mrs. Norah Kettelle, who disappeared a week ago Tuesday, four days after she and her husband, of Cambridge, Mass., had arrived at the "Honeymoon" camp on the shores of Lake Mashapaug, the mystery surrounding the vanishing of the young bride was enhanced rather than lifted.

It was found that the rope about her neck and the anchor which had dragged her body to the bottom of the lake are not the ones that were in the boat in which she had rowed away from the lake cottage for the last time.

An investigation was immediately started to discover where the bride had acquired the rope which she is believed to have tied about her neck and the anchor which weighted her down but the search was unavailing. Search also failed to reveal the rope and anchor with which the boat had been equipped.

HUSBAND UNNERVED.

The husband of the dead girl arrived about three hours after the discovery of the body. He was so unnerved that he could not look at the body.

The body, which was discovered by J. E. Olcott, a cottager, floating face downward in the lake about a hundred yards from the spot where the empty rowboat was found by the husband, was removed from the water by Captain Aiden McMurtry, of the State Police and an aide.

Medical Examiner G. Percival Bard of Stafford Springs was called and had the body taken to a cottage, where he conducted an examination.

Dr. Bard declined to state whether he had found any marks that might indicate another solution than suicide. He will make his complete report today to Coroner John F. Fahey of Rockville.

Following the examination the body was removed to undertaking parlors in Stafford Springs. Meantime, Captain McMurtry held an extended interview with Kettelle. Both declined to comment on the nature of their talk.

Captain McMurtry and his aide returned immediately to Hartford, declaring that he would take no further action until the coroner's report had been made public.

INVESTIGATION ENDED.

He said that, to all intents and purposes, his investigation was concluded. He refused to state whether or not he had made up his mind as to the suicide theory.

While the officials refused to express any opinions, however, relatives and friends insist that no other explanation of the death is possible. They pointed out that the anchor had been tied to the bride's neck with eighteen feet of rope, and declared that had there been fool play, the weight would have been attached close to the body.

Physician, 500 Miles Away, Treats Crew by Wireless

New York, Sept. 23.—The captain and crew of a ship were cured of ptomaine poisoning by the surgeon of another ship 500 miles away, via wireless, according to the story told by Captain William Rind of the steamship America, just in from Bremen.

"When in mid-Atlantic," said Captain Rind, "I received a wireless from the captain of the Wekika, 500 miles away, stating that he and his crew were suffering from cramps, followed by alternating chills and fever and later by cold sweats. I turned the message over to Dr. Gordon Hislop of New London, Ct., our ship doctor. He wirelessed that the illness was ptomaine poisoning and ordered certain medicines.

Several messages passed and then the captain of the Wekika sent another message, saying he and the seamen were getting along all right.

In all ten candidates were discussed at the meeting, all of them having been mentioned in the press. Of these ten the support of the Mayor and his followers was thrown to Collins from the first.

The political leaders attending the meeting were: Francis R. Bangs, treasurer of the State Republican Committee; Frank S. Deland, city treasurer; Herbert A. Wilson, building commissioner; Robert J. Bottomly, former secretary of the Good Government Association, and Charles H. Innes, Republican leader of Boston.

George H. McCaffrey, secretary of the association, today refused to make any statement upon the meeting.

"All I can say now is that there was some discussion of candidates. All of the candidates discussed have been mentioned before. The only public statement I am at liberty to make now is that no candidate received endorsement."

The discussion of candidates will be resumed when the executive committee of the Good Government Association meets, as scheduled, this afternoon in Barristers' Hall.

ARMED BANDITS ROB CIGAR STORE

East Boston Proprietor Is Locked in Closet of Store

Three armed bandits entered a cigar store at No. 253 Summer street, East Boston, today, robbed the proprietor, Julius Klatzky, into a rear room, and escaped with more than $115 in cash and jewelry.

Klatzky was alone in the store when the men entered. One drew a revolver and backed him against the wall, while a second, also carrying a weapon, went behind the counter and rifled the cash drawer. The third man took from the proprietor's pocket a watch valued at $75. The money taken from the till amounted to about $45.

When they had taken the watch and money, one of the men ran to the rear of the store and opened a door leading to a small closet. Klatzky was forced to enter this room and the door was locked upon him, while the robbers hurried to the street and separated.

Klatzky remained a prisoner for fifteen minutes, when a customer who entered heard his cries and released him. A squad of police was rushed to the scene, but no trace of his assailants could be found.

SKULL FRACTURED; CYCLIST IS HELD

Charles A. Arsanault of No. 25 Baxter street, Quincy, is at the Cambridge Hospital with a fractured skull, having been knocked down by a motorcycle driven by Francis Nelson of Partridge avenue, Watertown.

The police ambulance rushed Arsanault to the hospital and Nelson was taken to the station house charged with driving so as to endanger the lives of others.

MAN AND WOMAN GO ON TRIAL IN LARCENIES

Mrs. Elizabeth Radcliffe, a boarding house mistress of Weymouth, and Alphonse Godin, a boarder at her home, were tried today in Dedham before Judge Lawton and a jury, charged with the larceny of goods amounting to $1,800 from Summer homes of residents in Weymouth.

On April 10 the home of William H. Wilde of No. 293 Bridge street, North Weymouth, was entered and men's and women's wearing apparel, steamer rugs and bed clothing, together with a phonograph, all valued at $1,712, were taken during the absence of the owners, who were in the South.

On March 15 the home of William A. Cook nearby was entered and personal property amounting to $93 stolen.

The police of Weymouth secured a search warrant and say they recovered most of the property in Mrs. Radcliffe's house.

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. FREIGHT CAR RIDER GETS $3.60 IN COURT

Haverhill, Sept. 23.—When Ralph Cobb, of East Boston, walked out of the Central District Court, he was $2.60 richer than when he went in. He pleaded guilty to unlawfully riding on a freight car on the Boston & Maine Railroad when arraigned before Judge John J. Winn and told the judge that he was formerly a stoker on coastwise vessels, was out of work and was trying his best to get down into Maine for the potato harvest to earn something to keep him from starving. Judge Winn placed the case on file and dug down in his pocket and gave Cobb a $3 bill. Court officer Silas Morse, remembering that there was $1.60 in court money available for contingencies, gave it to Cobb, who went on his way rejoicing.

HURLS FOOD AND FOILS GUNMAN IN CAFE

Proprietor Then Dives Through Window; Two Seamen Held as Robbers

A plate of hot roast pork with all the "trimmings" thrown with unerring aim by James Thompkins, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 82 Atlantic avenue, saved him considerable money and resulted in the arrest of John Haverton, thirty-six years old, and William Thompson, twenty-six years old, both seamen, charged with attempted robbery while armed with dangerous weapons.

Late yesterday afternoon, according to Thompkins, two men entered his store and asked for an order of roast pork, adding that they wanted it in a hurry.

Thompkins hustled into the kitchen, hurriedly prepared the order and was placing it before them when Haverton pushed a revolver against his body and demanded money. Thompkins quickly decided that he would be assaulted whether he gave them the money or not and, therefore, let go of the plate of pork which struck Haverton between the eyes.

Taking advantage of his assailant's temporary blindness, the owner jumped through a side window, taking the sash and screen with him as he went.

He ran to the corner of Atlantic avenue and Commercial street, where he met Patrolmen Gannon and Timmins of the Hanover street station and Traffic Officer Hare. He returned to his store with the three officers and about a score of citizens just in time to see the two fleeing.

The crowd with the policemen and Thompkins in the lead gave chase and captured the pair after a run through many North End streets.

At the station house the men said that they were out of work and hungry. A blackjack was found on Thompson.

STATE WILL OPEN COURSE IN SPANISH

A course in conversational Spanish, offered by the State division of university extension for men and women of Boston and vicinity, will open at the Boston Public Library on October 3. The instruction will be especially helpful for teachers, persons intending to travel, and those who are employed by firms engaged in trade with Spanish-speaking countries.

The class will be divided into two sections, one for the more advanced students meeting in the lecture hall of the library at 7 p. m., and one at 8 p. m. for students just beginning the study of the language.

COMMON CAT SKINS BOUGHT FOR GERMANY

New York, Sept. 23—Common, ordinary house cat pelts were purchased in large quantities for export to Germany at the annual Fall fur auctions. The skins sold for nearly $1 less than the record price for $1.24 obtained in the Winter of 1920. American opossum pelts were also purchased by German exporters, who explained that the fur was popular there when dyed to imitate skunk. House cat pelts to the number of 28,000 were offered.

HARVARD AWARDS FELLOWSHIP TO BLIND MAN

French War Hero to Study at Law School; London Student Honored

Although totally blinded in the war, Guy Envin, a young Frenchman, has been awarded the Victor E. Chapman Fellowship at Harvard by vote of the corporation of the university, and is coming to Cambridge this Fall to study at the Harvard Law School.

Envin is the son of a French professor. He was a first-lieutenant in the French army, was terribly wounded at Beauséjour, and lost his eyesight. Since then, however, he has gone pluckily on with his studies, and has won the degrees of licencie-en-lettres and licencie-en-droit. He has also written a volume of poetry.

MEMORIAL TO FLYER.

He is now selected as the holder of the fellowship annually awarded to a young Frenchman in memory of Victor E. Chapman, Harvard, '13, who was killed in action while flying over Verdun.

Another fellowship of international interest, founded by members of the Harvard Club of New York in memory of Joseph H. Choate, '62, former American ambassador to Great Britain, has been awarded to Theodore F. T. Plucknett, graduate of the University of London, and recently research student of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, which was John Harvard's college.

He has been engaged in investigations of canon law in medieval England, and like Lieutenant Envin is to study at the Harvard Law School, where the collection of works on English law is more complete than any in England.

TWICE WINS HONOR.

The Hemenway Fellowship in Archaeology and Ethnology goes for the second time to Hiralal Sankar Guha of Calcutta, India, who graduated from the University of Calcutta in 1912, while the John W. Brown Fellowship at the Medical School is assigned to Hilding Berglund of Stockholm, who has been working during the past year under Dr. Folin at the school.

Lloyd M. Hendrick, Jr., '12, of Somerville, William G. O'Toole of Louisville, and John L. Skinner of Detroit have been awarded three of the coveted traveling fellowships in architecture at Harvard. Hendrick and Skinner are chosen for the second time for the prizes of foreign travel and study, while O'Toole was a resident student at the Harvard School of Architecture last year.

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

Activities Open in the Berkshires

(Photo by Wide.)

MRS. ROGER T. TWITCHELL

Mrs. Roger T. Twitchell (Lucy B. Balch) is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Balch of Moss Hill road, Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Twitchell, who is prominent in Boston's social activities, was married last May.

By BETTY ALDEN.

Boston society folk seem to be playing no small part in the social life at Lenox and Stockbridge, to judge by the news which comes from the Berkshires.

Mrs. S. Parkman Shaw of Marlboro street gave one of the two large luncheons which took place on Wednesday at Lenox. Mrs. Shaw's affair, which was given at "Hedwood," was in honor of Mrs. J. Kearney Warren of New York who is stopping at the Curtis Hotel. The other luncheon was at the Lenox Club, with Mrs. Giraud Foster of New York as hostess.

Mrs. Edward Mott Davis of Boston is the guest of Mrs. George Cuthbert Thomas of New York, who has just opened her Stockbridge estate, "Pinewold," for the Autumn season.

Mrs. William Leverett Chase, who is mistress of the big stone mansion on Alton place, Brookline, numbers among the recent arrivals at the Aspinwall Hotel in Lenox. Other guests at the hotel include Mr. and Mrs. Randall Morgan, Mrs. Walter S. Wyatt and Miss Hannah C. Wright of Philadelphia.

Though the Berkshires and the North Shore seem to claim perhaps the major part of Boston society, I note that not even such distant resorts as Hot Springs, Va., are being overlooked by the socially-elect of the Hub. Mrs. Armory Lawrence, who was among the sojourners at the Southern resort recently, made the drive to Warm Springs with Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. McCorkle of New York.

Newport society shared pleasantly in the birthday celebration given in honor of Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice at the Rhode Island watering place. Dr. and Mrs. Rice, by the way, are planning to sail for Europe on October 4.

Mention of Newport brings to mind the fact that $1,000 was raised at the Horse Show this year for the benefit of the Salvation Army at Newport. The committee, consisting of Messrs. Henry C. Eldredge, Prescott Lawrence, Dr. Thomas G. Ashton and Reginald C. Vanderbilt, which did such splendid work for the show, has turned the proceeds over to the Army. It is of interest to New Yorkers and the Newporters still remaining at their Summer estates that the well-known "Reggie" has departed from the Rhode Island resort and is at present at the Vanderbilt Hotel, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Frothingham of Beacon street, with their three daughters, are to spend the coming year abroad. The family plans to make headquarters in Italy, it is understood, but will be placed in a school, while Dr. and Mrs. Frothingham tour the continent. Their Winter home will not be opened, as they will remain at their Summer residence in Pocasset until the sail for foreign shores.

Mrs. Hall McAllister of Commonwealth avenue and her daughter, Mrs. Nevil Ford, of Beacon street, are back in town for the Winter. Mrs. Ford has returned from her sojourn at Round Mountain lake, while her mother spent the season at Lake Sunapee and making several visits along the North Shore.

EARLY MAILING CAMPAIGN ON IN BOSTON

Central Office Seeks to Find Relief for Afternoon Congestion

Efforts to prevent congestion of the mails in the late afternoon in the Central Postoffice are now being made by the postal authorities who are conducting a "mail early campaign" in order to assure quicker delivery.

Recently the slogan "sign as you write and mail as you sign" was introduced to the mailing public and has resulted in the public following the suggestion which has brought good results.

In many business offices it is said that letters written in the morning are left on desks until late in the afternoon and then addressed and mailed, which if addressed and mailed at once would result in the letters being received much earlier.

As a result of the campaign here it is said by postal officials that the Twentieth Century Limited train is now leaving this city every day with about twice the amount of mail as it did prior to the campaign for early mailing.

According to figures in the central postoffice the bulk of the mail received there is 329,334 letters at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 205,494 letters at 5 o'clock at night.

Postal officials state that there is no doubt that if the bulk of this two hours' mail was mailed as soon as it was written that it would reach the central postoffice hours earlier and would no doubt in many cases reach its destination hours and probably a day sooner than if it was mailed on the last minute of the closing office hours.

Among the girls who come to America nowadays from the Old Countries there are few who want to be cooks, not many chambermaids and no "second girls." They all mean to go into the movies! This is one of the recent discoveries of Fay King, the talented young woman from the West who writes cheerful little editorialettes in the Boston Daily Advertiser every day and draws her own pictures to illustrate them.

DARTMOUTH STARTS ITS 153D YEAR

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 23.—Dartmouth College started upon its one hundred and fifty-third year Thursday. The freshman class, numbering six hundred and fifty, is the largest ever entering the college. New England, as usual is the district with the greatest representation, the Middle West comes next. Massachusetts leads the States, with New York a close second. Then come in order New Hampshire, Illinois, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

I. O. O. F. MAY EXTEND WORK ACROSS SEA

Toronto, Sept. 23.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, which has been in session for the last week, is considering extending the order's activities to Europe and other parts of the world. The committee on international relations has recommended the introduction of a schedule of official visitations, with quasi-independent jurisdiction in those countries as soon as possible. The suggestion was reported to have been favorably received.

SALES TAX LAW FAVORED BY REALTY MEN

Bay State Body Makes Plea to Congress for Repeal of Excess Profits Tax

Letters have been sent by the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange to Bay State representatives in Congress to urge adoption of the sales tax and repeal of the excess profits taxes, retroactive to January 1, 1921.

This action of the real estate exchange follows almost unanimous action of the Chamber of Commerce in favor of the sales tax and opposed to the excess profits tax and surtaxes.

FAIREST METHOD.

"The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange has made a study of the tax problem," declared William B. Felton, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange today, "and we are convinced that the simplest, fairest and most direct method of raising revenue would be through the sales tax plan.

"The very simplicity of the sales tax method makes it easy and cheap to collect and hard to dodge, and it makes it easier for merchants all along the line to figure their costs and selling prices. Under the excess profits tax, goods were marked up out of all reason, simply as a precaution that the taxes would be covered and a profit returned to business.

"Experience has proved that the taxpayer, under the excess profits tax, doubled and even trebled prices so as to be sure and come out whole when the day of payment to the government comes around.

"A sales tax of say 1 per cent. would certainly result in a substantial reduction in the high cost of living, because it would be easy to trace each time the tax is collected from the various merchants to the ultimate consumer.

WOULD LOWER H. C. L.

"Everyone knows that the tax on real estate is not paid by the owner, but by the tenant in increased rental, and the same is true of commodities. The ultimate consumer foots the bill.

"It is figured by the Department of Justice that 23.2 per cent. of the present cost of living is due to the heavy business taxes levied under the excess profits and surtax clauses. If these burdensome taxes are removed and a general sales tax substituted, merchants would be able to cut prices from 6 to 10 per cent.

"Under the sales tax system, a suit of clothes that would retail at $., if no other taxes were put on it, would cost only $1.86 more if it was subjected to a general sales tax of 1 per cent.

"Shoes, which go through six operations in passing from the raw hide to the consumer, would cost the latter only 3.3 per cent. additional under a 1 per cent. sales tax. On a $7 pair of shoes the extra cost to cover the sales tax would be twenty-four cents.

"Any system that will lighten the burden for the consumer will result in the consumer buying more and that makes business good."

OPEN AIR LECTURE ON IRISH QUESTION

Professor Walter Edgerton Holloway, recognized as an authority upon American Colonial history and political economy, formally opened a series of New England lectures upon "Americanism and Its Relation to Irish Freedom," at a public meeting held last night under the auspices of the Twelfth Congressional District of A. A. P. I. R., in Flood square, South Boston.

Dr. J. P. Tynan, district president, presided. Tonight Professor Holloway will deliver an address at the junction of Marcella and Highland streets, Jamaica Plain. The Brian Boru Irish War Pipers, of Worcester, will furnish music.

William H. O'Brien of the Public Service Commission will be the orator at another meeting tomorrow in Pilgrim Hall, arranged by Patrick Pearse Council.

MAYOR OF HAVERHILL ACTS FOR UNEMPLOYED

Haverhill, Sept. 23.—Believing that the widening of Kenoza avenue and elimination of a dangerous curve on the thoroughfare which is a part of the State highway to Merrimac, is in line with recommendations of Governor Cox that as much extra street work as possible be done to give employment to men out of work, Mayor Farnham R. Flanders, at suggestion of Commissioner of Streets George Martin has written to the Governor asking him to pass the proposition along to the State Highway Commission asking for their approval. Commissioner Martin has been working on the proposition for some time and has received assurances from the Highway Commission that the work will be done. At present there are 2,000 unemployed shoemakers alone in Haverhill.

Declares Race Suicide Is Sweeping Over New England

New York, Sept. 23.—The no-child marriage and the extinction of the old stock which laid the foundations of this republic are just ahead for New England if the gloomy prognostications of Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, its president, to the Congress of Eugenics now in session here, proves true.

Race suicide is sweeping New England bare of all her old families, declared the doctor, who added:

"In New England a century has seen the passage from the many child family to the one child family. The next phase is the no child family and the extinction of the stock which founded this republic. The pure stock is not holding its own."

TWO MILL WORKERS FACE THEFT CHARGE

New Bedford, Sept. 23.—Charles A. Gammons of Hersom street and Thomas H. Lavalley of Tinkham street were arrested on a charge of defalcation of $1,000 from Manomet Mill No. 8. Both men were locked up when they were unable to obtain bail for their release. According to officials of the Manomet Mill, where Gammons was employed as yard foreman and Lavalley as a helper, the $1,000 was obtained by Gammons who padded the payroll over a period of five months.

Fall River Boy Killed

Fall River, Sept. 23.—Ten-year-old Herman Lamothe of Dickenson street was killed while playing in the street when struck by an automobile truck trailer. His father is a member of the local fire department.

SOCIETY WOMAN SHOT, HOPES FOR DEATH

Mystery Still Surrounds Case of Mrs. Owen, Found With Bullet in Back

Pittsfield, Sept. 23.—Mystery still surrounds the strange shooting of Mrs. Edward Owen, wealthy society woman, at her home in Stockbridge last Sunday morning.

She is at the point of death in the House of Mercy here with a bullet in her back, inflicted with suicidal intent, says her physician, Dr. Herbert E. Stockwell. An accident, says her husband. Mrs. Owen is said to have told hospital attendants that she hoped for death.

Dr. Stockwell and Mrs. Owen's aunt, Miss Grace Stanley Parker, of Boston and Stockbridge, are in constant attendance at the hospital. An X-ray shows that the bullet missed the heart by a fraction of an inch and, going through the body, lodged in the back. It has not been removed.

The family has done everything possible to keep the affair from becoming public. Physicians and hospital attendants have been cautioned to secrecy. To all appearances, Mr. and Mrs. Owen and their two fine boys, Tudor and Philip Owen, have lived happily in the Owen ancestral mansion, built on the Stockbridge main street in 1790.

Close friends of the family say that Mrs. Owen has been in ill-health. Mrs. Owen is of medium height, slender, with red hair, black eyes, and of an impulsive, nervous temperament. She is forty-four years old and her husband is sixty-seven.

MRS. TYLER GOT KU KLUX KLAN MILLIONS

Woman Official Made Immense Profits Through Organization

A fortune of nearly $5,000,000 in the last year has flowed into the pockets of Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, the power behind the throne in the Imperial Palace, Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan.

This is the statement of former Grand Goblin C. Anderson Wright, whose expose of the mystic order that "rides in the night," published in the Boston American, has amazed the country.

Major Wright, herewith, also tells the attitude of those at the Imperial Palace toward Mrs. Tyler, and gives further proof of her absolute control of the Ku Klux Klan and its 700,000 members.

By C. ANDERSON WRIGHT.

(Former Grand Goblin, King Kleagle, Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and Chief of Staff, Invisible Planet, Knights of the Air.) (Copyright, 1921, by New York American.)

Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, half owner of the Southern Publicity Association with Edward Young Clarke, I have shown, is the power behind the throne, the real business brain of the Ku Klux Klan, though, being a woman, she is not eligible for membership and is not, of course, a member of the order.

SHARES PROFIT".

She is Chief of Staff of the Daughters of the Ku Klux Klan, an auxiliary created only a few weeks ago. The daughter of the Ku Klux Klan had not even been thought of, however, at the time of which I speak.

As the actual head of the Ku Klux Klan and partner in the publicity bureau, which has been responsible for its amazing growth in the last year, from a membership of about 10,000 to 700,000, Mrs. Tyler has enjoyed an equal share of the profits taken by Clarke. Her known income from the Ku Klux Klan in the last year can be estimated at $4,800,000.

Clarke and Mrs. Tyler are always on the lookout for any member who might violate the rules by saving the price of a robe.

As I have pointed out William Joseph Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, is a mere figurehead. That is apparent to everybody in Atlanta. He remains in the background and only appears on state occasions and then is not permitted to talk, unless Clarke is with him. Clarke, as I have shown, acts under Mrs. Tyler's instructions.

I have quoted Mrs. Tyler as saying to me:

"I am the Ku Klux Klan."

PROOF OF HER POWER.

Could any better proof of her power be shown than in the event of Tuesday of this week, when Kleagle A. Donald Bate of the Third District of New Jersey sent a wire of protest to Professor Simmons, Emperor and Imperial Wizard, demanding that the conduct of Mrs. Tyler and Clarke be immediately investigated, and if the charges are found true, that they be banished from the Invisible Empire.

As in all cases, this telegram reached Mrs. Tyler first. Apparently, without consulting anyone, she peremptorily dismissed Bate by wire.

LEGION CONVENTION FIGURES AS SEEN BY HARMONY

GIRL MAY SUE FOR RETURN OF DIAMOND PIN

Miss Rubenstein Enjoined From Selling Freedman's Gift Ring and Coat

John Freedman of Cambridge, granted a temporary injunction forbidding his former fiancee, Miss Lillian Rubenstein of Somerville, to dispose of a $1,000 diamond ring and a $380 fur coat, which he declared were engagement gifts, may himself be sued for the return of a diamond stickpin which it is alleged was presented him by the Somerville girl.

Friends declared today that this action may be taken, as a result of a statement by the girl's father, J. Rubenstein, that he was willing his daughter should return the diamond ring and fur coat, provided Freedman returned a diamond stickpin, which he alleges his daughter presented to Freedman.

Judge Hall of the Middlesex Superior Court granted Freedman's petition for an injunction, pending settlement of Freedman's suit for recovery of the articles. Freedman also asks reimbursement for furnishing an apartment to which he had planned to take his bride, declaring the wedding day had been set for September 1.

MEANS LOSS OF LICENSE, NOT ARREST

Goodwin Explains Penalty to Autoists for Violation of New Headlight Law

Loss of license, not arrest and prosecution by the police, is the penalty for violations of the automobile headlight regulations, according to attement made by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin.

Goodwin took exception to the action of two Back Bay patrolmen in arresting a trio of motorists, charged with violation of the lighting rules. "We have never asked the police to prosecute any one for violating the headlight law," declared Goodwin. "Indeed, we have written to the police of all communities asking that there be no prosecutions because of the radical changes demanded by the new rules."

Instead of police action he had substituted a tag system, under which automobiles are tagged by police, the coupon being returned to the office of the registrar, and a repetition of the offense, as shown by two coupons, results in the loss of license."

The drivers arrested by the Back Bay police gave their names as John Taber of Attleboro, Dorothy J. McCann of Cambridge and Fred S. Smith of Milton. Judge Wentworth in Municipal Court refused to hold them after listening to the complaint.

KU KLUX KLAN DENOUNCED BY LEGION

Branded as Un-American by Delegates at North Adams Convention

By CHARLES O. POWER.

North Adams, Sept. 23.—Resolutions were adopted by the American Legion today denouncing the Ku Klux Klan as un-American and instructing State delegates to the National Convention to fight for a similar resolution there.

Resolutions instructing delegates to the National Convention to fight for the adjusted compensation or bonus bill were adopted.

When the Red Cross Roll Call Day indorsement came before the convention, John P. Hallard of East Boston spoke in favor.

Delegate M. W. Murray of Newton created a commotion by a savage attack on the Red Cross.

The convention manifested disapproval of his remarks, but he did not resume his stat until commander declared him out of order.

WELFARE BODY AT DEER ISLAND IS ABOLISHED

O'Brien Also Reprimands Master Harlow and Shakes Up Jail Officials' Personnel

The Mutual Welfare League among Deer Island prisoners has been abolished and Master of the Island George M. Harlow has been severely reprimanded as a result of an investigation made by Institutions Commissioner Thome C. O'Brien following the escape last Sunday of two prisoners.

At the same time a complete reorganization of the officers at the jail was announced.

The League, formed in accordance with suggestions of Thomas Mott Osborne, had provided for an elaborate system of "sergeants" and "judges."

Today the prisoners holding these positions were told the league machinery had been abolished, and that hereafter matters of discipline will be removed entirely from the hands of the prisoners and placed solely in the hands of prison officials.

The reprimand to Harlow, O'Brien said, came because the two men who escaped the other day had been allowed greater freedom than men serving sentences for serious crimes ought to have received. None of the officers at the institution will be removed, although many will be shifted to different assignments.

AUTO MEN OPPOSE DEPARTMENT REMOVAL

The Bay State Automobile Association sent to Governor Cox a protest against the removal of the Motor Vehicle Department from the State House to Commonwealth Pier, South Boston. A letter was also sent to Lieutenant-Governor Fuller suggesting that he oppose the removal of the department offices. The association declares that the offices at the pier have been idle for years and in that time could have been used for the State boards. It asks that the Lieutenant-Governor take steps to investigate this subject. Mr. Fuller is a member of the association.

Why It Costs So Much To Mine Anthracite

WHAT natural resource so essential to public welfare and health demands such expense and effort to reclaim as anthracite coal? Obstacles must be overcome at every step of its progress from rock-ribbed fastnesses underground to our homes and factories. The miner's pick—the waiting railroad car—your local dealer's delivery cart—these are only a few of the links in the anthracite chain. Throughout its length, outlays of money and labor are required.

Explosives, air for ventilation, and timber in vast quantities are called for every day in the operation of an anthracite mine.

Fully as important as the unceasing use of these materials is the removal from the mine of tons of rock. Also thousands of gallons of water are pumped daily.

Mines use 50,000,000 pounds of explosives to blast out the 195 miles of tunnels and gang ways driven annually.

This tunneling, equal to the building of a double-track subway between New York and Philadelphia, is necessary in order to get at new supplies of coal.

For every ton of coal mined, 6,700 cubic feet of air must be forced into the workings by elaborate fan and blower systems.

Supporting props must be changed constantly. More than 800 feet of lumber is used for every carload of coal.

Water which gathers constantly in the mines must be kept down. This means costly pumping every hour in the 24.

On the average 18 tons of water are raised to the surface for each ton of coal produced—1,620,000,000 tons of water annually.

Even the ton of material coming up in the mine car often contains 33 per cent of slate and other refuse.

Of the remainder one-third of the coal is too small to use in homes, and is always sold at a loss.

As a result there is often less than ½ ton of coal-bin anthracite out of each ton of material mined and handled.

The cost of supplies and of the waste removed is additional to the cost of labor and the expense of converting in the breakers the crude coal into domestic anthracite.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

NOT in ever so long has there been a season when the mode so unceasingly called for velvets—the mode of morning and afternoon, as well as evening. Nor in ever so long have the tones been as richly exquisite as the violine shades prevalent at the Paris openings this season. And so, combining the most luxurious in color and fabric, a three-piece tailleur decides to be of fuchia red velvet, deeply banded with Siberian squirrel. The circular coat follows the line of least resistance by fastening with a bow of matching satin cire ribbon.

It would seem as though a one-piece frock of hunter's green velvet had done enough to make itself appealing when it adds a jabot drapery of the velvet from throat to waistline and from waistline to more than the bottom of the hem. But in addition to this, beige cheviot, woven with a design in green metal threads, makes the bodice and upper skirt section much less a matter of course than they otherwise would have been. The round collar, also, is interesting.

CARDINAL ASKS FUNDS FOR CHARITIES

Calls for Special Daily Prayers in All Boston Churches in October

Cardinal O'Connell in a letter to every pastor in the archdiocese directs that special prayers be said in all the churches of the diocese every day from October 1 to November 2.

The letter will appear officially in this week's issue of the Pilot, organ of the archdiocese, and is as follows:

"The annual collection for the diocesan charities will be taken up at all the masses in the churches of the diocese on Sunday, October 2.

"This is the one occasion each year on which we appeal to the faithful to help by their generosity in the maintenance of the diocesan charitable institutions, and the response made in the past gives us the assurance that our good people only wish to be reminded of their duty.

"The numerous charitable institutions of the diocese have been doing excellent work. They have been efficiently administered and they have expended with scrupulous care the funds at their disposal. They merit our encouragement and support.

"If present conditions should continue and the Winter should prove severe the diocesan charitable institutions will be called upon for a larger share of assistance, and the more generous the contributions of the faithful the more these institutions will be able to accomplish.

"We are not unmindful of the many demands which have been made upon the resources of our good people during the past months, yet we do not doubt of the success of this appeal, knowing that the faithful of this diocese well realize that the diocesan charitable activities are dependent upon their co-operation, and that many blessings are the reward of their assistance.

(Signed)
"WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL,
"Archbishop of Boston."

May Bar Sacrament to Women Dressed Immodestly

Montreal, Sept. 23.—"Modern clothes of women are sinful creations," said Rev. P. O. Plamondon, prefect of Church of the Gesu, in commenting on the notices posted in the church placing a ban on low-neck and short-sleeve gowns. The notice intimates that holy communion may be refused women who approach the altar improperly clad. The notice follows:

"Out of respect to our Saviour, present in the tabernacle, and for the edification of our neighbors, we beg women to appear in church only in dress of irreproachable modesty, collars closed and sleeves sufficiently long. We draw specially to your notice the abuse of dress of transparent material. We earnestly hope that we will not have to resort to drastic measures to enforce this, such as the refusal of sacrament."

TO FREE SPRINGFIELD MAN IN $180,000 CASE

Reading, Pa., Sept. 23.—A motion will be made in court next week by District Attorney Maya to have dismissed the indictment against Walter A. Shean of Springfield, Mass. A true bill was found against Shean by the Grand Jury as an alleged accessory before and after the fact in the $180,000 robbery of the Wyomissing People's Trust Company, for which six men have been sentenced. In Springfield $13,000 of the stolen bonds were surrendered to the People's Trust.

BOOTLEGGERS OF PROVIDENCE IN PANIC

Dispose of Stocks on Rumors McCarthy's "Flying Squadron" Is in City

Providence, Sept. 23.—Because of rumors that William J. McCarthy, former prohibition director of New England and his "flying squadron" of prohibition men are in town bar-keepers have disposed of whatever wet goods they may have had in their near-beer saloons and the town is apparently "bone dry."

It is said that McCarthy will be unable to do any raiding until United States Commissioner Matteson returns from his vacation Saturday and issues warrants.

The most recent raid conducted by prohibition agent Joseph F. Morrissey, head of the Rhode Island force, was made on the premises of John Michaels, No. 428 Washington street where forty gallons of mash, badly decomposed, was found. The agents who raided the premises say that the mash was in the worst state of decomposition they ever saw.

BRITAIN FEARS TROUBLE OVER U. S. AGENDA

Believes Certain Elements May Involve International Complications

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 23. — Great Britain has conveyed the opinion to the United States that the agenda for the Washington conference contains elements which may involve international complications, it was learned today from a high authority.

The British Foreign Office, it was said, is awaiting an answer from Washington to representations which were made through Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States.

Great Britain, it now appears, has not yet completely abandoned hope that preliminary conversations can be arranged. Also the hope prevails that the United States may amend the agenda to make it more definite on some points.

The British fear that discussion of limitation of land armaments will precipitate trouble, in view of the attitude of the continental European powers upon this subject.

The informal communications between Washington and London date back nearly a fortnight, when America invited Great Britain to make any criticism she saw fit upon the outline of the agenda which was transmitted through Sir Auckland Geddes on Sept. 12.

Great Britain, on the plea that she was unwilling to criticize, but was anxious to assist, pointed out that the agenda was meagre and might not prove helpful, particularly because limitation of land armaments, which is vitally controversial in character, heads the list. Great Britain took the view that this subject might evoke "endless arguments," and involve France and Italy in complications.

Pending a reply from the United States, the Government will not appoint the British delegates to the conference. It was stated in semi-official circles that the only definite move which has been made in that direction was Premier Lloyd George's action in writing to A. Bonar Law, asking him if his health would permit him to attend. So far as known Mr. Law has not replied.

DANCE STEAMER GOES DOWN IN CHARLES

Jack O' Lantern Mysteriously Sinks After Renewal of License Is Refused

Police are investigating the mysterious sinking of the amusement steamboat Jack O' Lantern in the Charles River Basin, near the Cottage Farm bridge.

The rear end of the steamer is 20 feet under water. The lower deck, where the dance hall is located, is also submerged. The forward end is about four feet under water. It is estimated it will cost several thousand dollars to float it.

The steamer, the property of the Charles River Amusement Company, is 136 feet long and 40 feet wide.

Police say the owners have been at odds over money matters. And that efforts failed to have the entertainment license renewed at its expiration August 1.

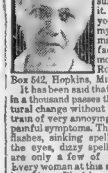
HOW WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Escape the Dreaded Sufferings of That Period by Taking Mrs. Block's Advice

Hopkins, Minn. — "During Change of Life I had hot flashes and suffered for two years. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the paper and got good results from taking it. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish this fact as a testimonial." — Mrs. ROBERT BLOCK, Box 542, Hopkins, Minn.



It has been said that not one woman in a thousand passes this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, sinking spells, spots before the eyes, dizzy spells, nervousness, are only a few of the symptoms. Every woman at this age should profit by Mrs. Block's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., will send their Private Text-Book, "Ailments Peculiar to Women," free on request. It contains valuable information.

RUSSIA NEEDS SEED TO FIGHT STARVATION

Food for Workers in Factories Is Necessary to Speed Up Industry

By MARY HEATON VORSE.

(Noted author, especially commissioned by Universal Service, to visit the Samara famine district of Russia).

Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service

Moscow, Sept. 23 (Delayed via radio from Riga to Berlin).—On arrival at Saratoff, President Kalinin's party went to a newspaper office to get information about the Saratoff situation.

The cry here, as everywhere, is for seed. Six million poods of seed are needed in this district.

"We have two million poods of seed," the editor told us. "The central government promises us two millions and the other two million poods we must get—who knows how."

"What are you doing to fight the famine?" he was asked.

"We are doing everything that is possible," he said. "We are striving to get food for the workers in order to speed up work in the factories. Our agents are also trying to get food in Paris arranging the exchange of manufactured products for food. We are making plans to care for five thousand more children in homes. We are opening soup kitchens throughout the government, so that 150,000 additional children can have a daily mess. As the famine grows worse we will have to provide food for 150,000 persons daily."

Each local government is meeting the famine situation in a different way.

Samara, overwhelmed by calamity, was waiting helplessly for the famine relief from "Center."

The desperate Volga Germans were meeting death by starvation by fighting the famine with every local resource.

Saratoff is advancing valiantly to fight the famine before being overwhelmed by disaster. In Saratoff we felt for the first time more as though we were approaching the calamity which was still some distance away.

The workers here still had heart to attend the open air comrade run by the Soviet. The faces of the workers at the political meeting looked less stricken than those we had become accustomed to.

In each town President Kalinin speaks to a crowded audience of workers from the trades unions, from the Soviets and from the Communist party. These three groups have different functions in making Russia's red blood circulate again.

Reconstruction is the great preoccupation of all. When the President of the Republic talks to the workers who have the responsibility of the running of society, from industry to the government, he glosses nothing.

The situation is a bad one and he tells them so. Kalinin does not know the meaning of oratory. He walks up and down the platform hammering in his facts. After the speeches the meeting is thrown wide open for general discussion. Anyone may present a resolution or address the audience on any question.

ORGANIST WOOD TO GIVE GOLDEN RECITAL

To celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his engagement as organist of the church, William E. Wood of No. 72 Lombard road, Arlington, organist emeritus, will give an organ recital in the Arlington First Baptist Church, next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Wood began as organist of the church in 1871. He had for three and one-half years prior to that played at the Pleasant Street Congregational Church, in Arlington, and had also substituted for one month in the Baptist Church back in 1867.

Your Chance, If You Know the Motor Cars!

"What Automobile Is This?" the Big Question in Boston American $1,500 Test, Which Begins Monday.

Fifty pictures!

Each representing a well known make of automobile.

Fifty days!

One picture each day.

"Can you tell one automobile from another?"

Identify these, in the Boston American's pictures.

Then write fifty words, calculated to further the Walk Right-Drive Right movement, and you will be eligible for one of ninety-four cash prizes, with a total value of $1,500.

The First Award will be Five Hundred Dollars.

Merely for naming automobiles and writing the best fifty-word suggestion!

The above describes, in brief, the Name-this Auto Contest, which will be inaugurated in the Boston American next Monday with the printing of picture No. 1.

THE REWARDS
First reward.....	$500
Second reward.....	200
Third reward.....	100
Fourth reward.....	50
Fifth reward.....	40
Sixth reward.....	30
Seventh reward.....	20
25 rewards of $10 each.....	250
62 rewards of $5 each.....	310
Total	$1,500

This new Test will be as different—and as easy—for the beginning as at the end. Study the first picture on Monday. If "No. 1" is not too hard for you, you may have as good a chance as all others. If, on the other hand, No. 1 "stops" you—well, you may as well be stopped first as last.

Important, One of These Days, to Know One Car from Another

The time is coming, if it is not here when it will be important, if not essential, for every man, woman and child among us to be able to name the different motor cars on sight. How many cars do YOU know? Most of us can name three or four, when we see them. Many youngsters can name dozens of makes. The Boston American contest is a contest for young and old. The ninety-four prizes must be won. The $1,500 MUST be paid.

This contest is not going to take a great deal of room in these columns. When it is well under way, perhaps, there may be little more than the daily picture of an automobile. The theory of the Boston American is that its space belongs to its readers and should be occupied first by news, and secondly by features. Not for getting the advertisements frequently tell the most important news in many newspapers.

Study the first few automobile pictures and decide for yourself whether you think you stand a chance. Each picture will give a partial view of the car in question. There will be no attempt to disguise it in any way, no effort to make some pictures easy and some of them hard. From beginning to end the Test problems will be of equal ease or equal difficulty.

"But," you may say, "I am not qualified to identify so many different makes."

And who is, do you think? Perhaps, no one. That will help to make the test a real Test. You will be permitted to get help wherever you can: the traffic policeman on the corner may be willing to help (if you do not pester him when he is on duty), the man in the garage, the motor-mechanic you know, any one. Ask some one who knows!

This is an effort on the part of the Boston American to find out how well its readers are acquainted with the different cars. Picture No. 1 will be printed on Monday next, just as now begin the observance of No Accident Week. It may help to reduce the number of certain kinds of accidents if each of us is able to name the motor cars at a glance.

To make sure of Monday's Boston American, and be in at the beginning of this novel competition, it will be well to place an order with your newsdealer NOW. The paper will be in big demand. Tell the newsdealer you will want it regularly for the fifty-day period of the Name-this Auto Contest.

Why It Is a Good Plan to Speak Now to Mr. Newsdealer

There is more than one reason for suggesting to all who intend to take part in the $1,500 Name-this-Auto Contest that they place an order for the Boston American in advance.

The Automobile Contest begins next Monday. Interest in it will be increasing day by day. Before the Contest is many days old we expect to print the result of the recent Songs of the World Title Test and name the winners of its awards. We shall also print a complete list of the Correct Titles.

Unless you let the newsdealer know of you, waste you suddenly may find it impossible to buy a paper containing one of the earlier pictures.

On this page is an outline of the methods along which the Name-this-Auto Contest will be conducted. Further information tomorrow. Picture No. 1 and Rules of the Automobile Contest, on Monday. Make sure of Monday's Boston American.

SON-IN-LAW IS HUNTED FOR MURDER

Shot His Wife's Father In Self-Defence in Quarrel, Say Witnesses

Providence, Sept. 22.—Pasquale Gidilio, forty years old, of State street, Bristol, is dead and the police are searching for Salvadore Barrara, twenty-six years old, his son-in-law whom the police say shot him.

The murder took place in Barrara's home on Bowen street, Bristol, following a quarrel between the two men. While the police have not thoroughly investigated the case, they say the two were involved in a quarrel over family matters, and from what they learn from witnesses, Barrara shot Gidilio in self-defence.

However, the younger man, it is said, drew a revolver from his pocket and shot his father-in-law through the heart, killing him instantly. Barrara ran from the house immediately after the shooting and has not been seen since.

Mrs. Gidilio, who was in the house at the time, became hysterical and was removed to the Rhode Island hospital, Providence. Barrara married Gidilio's daughter about a year ago and has one child. He is a barber by trade.

"Way Down East" Girl to Head Her Own Movie Company

LILLIAN GISH.

Lillian Gish, the heroine of "Way Down East," which returns to Boston and will play at the Globe Theatre next week, is no longer with D. W. Griffith, who made her a great star. She has become the head of a picture company of her own and is now busily playing in and directing a big feature film which will be shortly released. The subject is being kept a secret until the young star is ready to make her announcement.

BANDITS SHOOT SOMERVILLE REALTY MAN

Wealthy Property Holder Is Wounded After Telling Robbers He Had No Money

Two armed auto bandits for whom the police of Greater Boston are searching shot seventy-year-old Joseph Edenberg, a wealthy real estate holder, in the right arm after he had failed to give them money when held up on the steps of his home at No. 8 Waldo avenue, Somerville.

The aged victim's condition is said not to be serious at the Somerville Hospital.

After the shooting the bandits fled across the avenue, leaped into their machine, the engine of which had been kept running, and sped away in the direction of Boston.

The machine was found today, abandoned on Hudson street, Somerville. It bore the Maine registration No. 3914, and was stolen in Boston yesterday, it is believed.

TEN WORCESTER BOYS SHOE TRADE ABROAD

Worcester Sept 23.—To prevent accidents to the 1,500 North High School pupils, Principal Charles E. Burbank will appoint ten boys who will act as traffic officers daily when school lets out. The boy policemen will be trained by Police Sergeant Benjamin Herman. Two boys will direct traffic near the school each day. This is the second city in the state to appoint boy officers. Pupils in St. Charles School, Waltham, recently took over the direction of traffic near their institution.

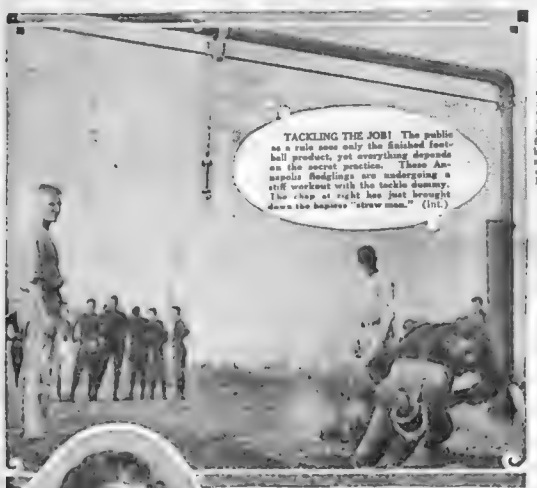
YOUNG COUPLE IN 'MADE IN HEAVEN' MARRIAGE ATOP MT. RAINIER



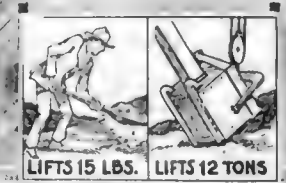
TACKLING THE JOB! The public as a rule sees only the finished football product, yet everything depends on the secret practice. These Annapolis fledglings are undergoing a stiff workout with the tackle dummy. The chap at right has just brought down the hapless "straw man." (Int.)

THAT'S US ALL OVER, MABEL! Mabel Normand, star of garb and smart of figure, defied the cool waves the other day for a dip on the beach at Raymond Hitchcock's Long Island estate. (U. & U.)

NO! AN OPERATION! Merely Wesley Barry, the kute kamera kid, in the process of becoming immortal. Wesley will now blossom forth as a full-fledged statue, freckles and all. Photo shows the making of the face.

WELL DONE, LITTLE MAN, ETC.! Richard Herrick, 16 the chorubic age of 6, won the swimming championship of the Pacific coast. Outdistanced all competitors in quarter-mile swim. Note his medals. (A. L.)

THE VILLAGE SMITHESS! Lack of men forced Mrs. Ashby, wife of a war hero, to take up horseshoeing during war. Now she's adopted it as her life work. Shown at her shop, Surrey, Eng. (Int.)



DADDY OF THEM ALL! Only one man is required to operate this new electric power shovel, the largest in the world. The lifting monster weighs 350 tons and has just been completed. Each mouthful of the shovel means 12 tons of dirt or rock moved. Think of having the cellar of your new home excavated with two or three shovelfuls. (U. & U.)

ON THE RUN! Kisses and cheers greeted Mlle. Kessler when she crossed the tape first in the recent race for a prize of 1,000 francs, held in Paris for the Midinettes. Photo shows her near finish line. (W. W.)

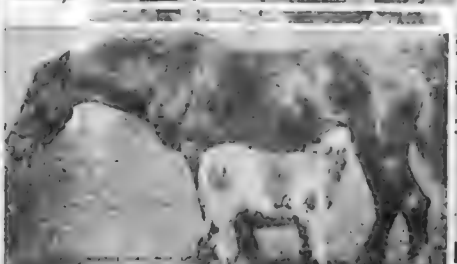
REV. THERON RANKIN of Williston, S. C., a missionary, has sailed for Canton, China, where wedding bells will ring for him and Miss Victoria Green, also a missionary.

HOW MANY LUMPS, PLEASE? Mrs. Clarice, that is not a sooping cube. It's an Oriental tea frock in a charming combination of rose-colored velvet and satin. Has harem skirt, opening on sides. (W. W.)

MR. AND MRS. E. J. HAMILTON of Buckley, Wash. (centre), snapped just after their marriage among the clouds, 14,528 ft. high, atop Mt. Rainier. (U. & U.)

OVERLAND, LTD.! Miss Jane Hendrick, despite her youthful appearance, is a traffic expert and will shortly begin an inspection of the French line's Pacific coast agencies.

THAT TIRED FEELING! The tires (or tyres as they gargle over thayah) on the bicycle at right look bulky and humpy, but are really easier riding than the ordinary kind. They weigh no more and are said to be 10 per cent. speedier, and being filled with air are as comfortable as the tires of a limousine. Fashionable in London. (Int.)



ETERNAL MOTHERHOOD! This little calf, the pet of a New Hampshire farm, lost its mother and didn't know what to do. 'Taint everybody that wants a little calf hanging around, but the kind-hearted mare shown here took pity on the little chap and has adopted him for her own. When the dinner bell rings the little rascal always answers "present." (United Photo.)

LA PALOMA! Settle back in your large chair and while a soft tropical breeze cools you and sways gently the fronds of palm flanking your table in the hollywood courtyard of the hotel, thus gay Mexican string orchestra will woo you into a delightful lassitude with dreamy and passion-fired songs and dances. No wonder Mexicans are lazy. The languor of their music is irresistible. (A.)

RUSSIA IS BIG, DIRTY PRISON, YOUTH SAYS

East Boston Boy Tells of Two Months Spent in Soviet Jail Cells

"Russia is just one big dirty, hungry prison place," declares Delvio Senna, of No. 166 Coleridge street, East Boston, after more than two months spent in Soviet jails and prison cells.

Senna, an American born and bred although of Portuguese parentage served through the World War in the American navy. After he was discharged following the armistice, he felt the call of the wanderlust and roamed pretty much over the whole of this country and Alaska.

Finally the call came to him to go to Europe and he shipped on board the steamer Antigua from New York for Danzig.

HITS FIRST SNAG.

He left his ship at Danzig and went to Libau and later to Riga.

"And there," he said, today, in recounting his experiences, "I ran against a stone wall. Nothing that I could say or do seemed to move them and I did not have money to pay them the tips richer men have given to get into Russia.

"One rainy day when there was a bitter northerly wind sweeping in from the gulf I took the bit in my teeth, so to speak, and crossed the frontier about mid-way between two of the sentry or guard stations that line both sides of the border.

"Things were beginning to look cheerful for me despite the mud and the rain, when I stumbled full into the arms of some Soviet guards who very promptly demanded my passport and when I failed to produce that, arrested me as a spy of capitalism and hustled me to a little prison in the small border town of Sibah.

PRISONER IN RAGS.

"I spent the rest of the day and all the following night, crowded in with a lot of men, most of them looking white and sick with fever, and all of them with their bodies clothed in tattered rags.

"It was about 10 o'clock the next morning, I guess, when the guards came round with a hunk of jet black bread and a small bowl of water soup for breakfast.

"At nightfall they brought some more soup and I learned that the daily allowance of bread—two fifths of a pound—was issued in the morning and unless you saved some for the night meal you had to drink your soup minus bread.

"For four days I was held close prisoner in that office jail for I was suspected of being a Soviet spy although I told every one that I met and could talk with that I was nothing of the sort.

"At last I was delighted to be told that I was to be transferred to one of the old tsarist prisons in the larger city of Smolensk.

"I had lost a lot of weight and was beginning to get a little scared that I would starve to death before I got out, when they got orders to send me to Moscow. There I was locked up in the prison where the Extraordinary Commission has its offices. It is called Lubyanka or something like that.

"All told I was in that prison for six weeks.

"In time the Red Cross heard me and the American consul got me on board the steamer Oringo bound for New York. I landed there last Wednesday and believe me I am mighty glad to get back. No more wandering for me or if I should make any more trips they will be as far away from Russia as I can get."

FRENCH PROBE DISASTER IN GERMANY

Suspect That Plant Where Hundreds Died Was Making Munitions for War

By Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 23.—French government chemists have begun an investigation at Oppau, Germany, where hundreds of persons were killed by an explosion on Wednesday morning, to determine whether secret war stores and munitions had been clandestinely manufactured there, says a Mayence dispatch to the Journal.

Their inquiry has shown the explosion was due to the spontaneous decomposition of a new product, nitro sulphate of ammonia, from which wonders were expected as a fertilising agent.

The manufacture of this salt has been going on in the plant of the Badische Aniline company at Oppau for five months and considerable stocks of it had accumulated. It is declared by the dispatch that its practice appears to have been grossly imprudent, as ammonia compounds are most unstable and the properties of the new preparation are thus far undefined.

Deflagration of the nitro-sulphate of ammonia is declared to have caused the explosion of other ammonia products and then several gasometers, one of which was of 50,000 cubic metres capacity, let go.

Give 21,000,000 Marks to Aid Oppau Victims

By International News Service

Berlin, Sept. 24—More than 21,000,000 marks has been appropriated for the relief of stricken families at Oppau. A number of victims were reminded by the poisonous chemical fumes that filled the air after the explosion. Forty persons all told died by the blast, have been removed to a hospital at Heidenberg for treatment.

The wreckage is still being searched for corpses while an investigation is under way to determine the exact cause. There has been no confirmation of the report that the explosion was caused by experiments with a new kind of gas.

BOSTON FIREMAN HURT BY AUTO AT BLAZE

NORTH PROBLEM FACES VALERA, HAPGOOD SAYS

Irish Leader Has No Plan for Ulster Under Separate Rule, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
Staff Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, Sept. 23—Fighting to get away from sonamthy requires different qualities from working out constructive programs. There are few to equal Washington. Byron said there was but one.

Ramon De Valera has a hard task confronting him. It may not exceed by far the another Irishman, or group of Irishmen. It requires something different from the work he has so successfully accomplished.

Under his lead the South Irish have won every real thing that was appreciable number of them dared hop to a short time ago. It is evident now that the British will grant every aspect of independence except the technical aspect.

PUBLIC BEHIND PREMIER.

It is equally evident that the British public is behind the premier in refusing to accept that literal is to occupy a position more independent than is held by South America, Canada and Australia.

In continuing to fight for the technical completeness of Independence De Valera would be up against a puzzling situation. The South Irish are already free. They are running their own government. The British government is not functioning in Ireland. It will never function there again.

"Ireland," says the veteran National leader, William O'Brien, "is really self-governing and free, and the world is not a penny the worse." All others agents that the best course to pursue is merely to let the thing alone indefinitely.

What then is it that De Valera is struggling up against?

NO PLAN FOR NORTH.

It is that he has no plan whatever, as far as thus far shown, for the minority in northern Ireland. And he cannot work out a plan as long as he has a departure from the principle involved on, for North Ireland. I has not the slightest intention of accepting any settlement that gives Ireland altogether out of the empire.

De Valera is driven to the position of saying that if absolutely complete sovereignty is granted to Ireland first, including the four unruly counties the south of Ireland will immediately know how to make those counties quite happy without the application of force.

But nobody can take that statement seriously. Whatever may be said about the disputed counties there is no doubt whatever that there are four that would put up every resistance in their power against being separated from the empire.

It is a very easy task," says De Valera, "to lead on a straight road."

ROAD IS NOT STRAIGHT.

But the road, now that independence for South Ireland is practically won, is by no means straight and easy. To reach an agreement with the northern counties requires tact. More will cannot bring it about. More battling, probably, makes it harder. For aggressive National pride blinds people to the arguments and the rights of others, including their own minorities.

The riots and bloodshed in the east until the Irish majority is generous. The British have been forced to yield to the Irish majority. They have given in the end will have to concede something to the Irish minority.

That something is real independence in the empire. While the Irish were fighting for it, some concrete aspects of freedom they had with them the first elements in England, in the colonies and in Canada.

MADE MANY ENEMIES.

By handing out on this one abstract point they have set against them Irishmen like Plunkett, colonials like Smuts, and the most generous of the British Liberals.

Nevertheless it is nice not to remember the principles of living. It may well be that, in handing on to the one remaining point that they know Ulster will not accept, the Valera and the other leaders are merely digging in the deeper. They have to—confirming and fortifying permanent the impression they have made.

There is every reason that they should be cautious. They are dealing with the shrewdest people in the world—possibly the shrewdest nation of whom we have any knowledge.

They naturally do not wish to commit anything until they are confident that Lloyd George can no longer double-cross them as to what he seems to have already started.

CONCERT STAGE AGAIN TO SEE VIOLINIST

Former Ellen Keller Plans to Return After Visit in Canton

Canton society has been much interested in the visit of Mrs. Ellen Keller Souysmith of Madison avenue, New York, to relatives on Bolivar street, during the past fortnight.

As Ellen Keller, Mrs. Souysmith was one of the best known girl violinists in New England. She removed to New York at the time of her marriage and retired from the concert stage.

Being suddenly widowed, she volunteered her services to the government and played at many cantonments in Europe during the war.

Mrs. Souysmith has decided to resume her violin playing and she treasures a Guardini violin, valued at $14,000, the gift of her late husband.

Pork Chops and Raw Potatoes Diet as Bride, She Says

Mrs. Nina A. Lanctot of Somerville, testifying in East Cambridge court in her divorce suit against George E. Lanctot of Lowell, declared that during her life with her husband she had been compelled to subsist on a diet consisting almost solely of pork chops and raw potatoes.

Furthermore, she declared, during their married life since 1907 he had purchased her only two suits of clothes and a hat. These, she said, had been bought on the installment plan, and had later been taken away from her.

The suit was uncontested, based on alleged failure to provide. Judge Hall took the case under advisement.

OLD KING FOOTBALL BACK IN LIMELIGHT AGAIN AS SEASON OPENS

By Charles E. Parker

The lambs are led to the slaughter tomorrow.

On fifty-odd gridirons throughout the length and breadth of this fair land ceremonies welcoming the return of King Football will be staged, and as in nearly every instance a big college team engages a much smaller rival—two such rivals in the case of Harvard—the little fellers play the unpleasant roles.

Occasionally the potential lambs have sprouted horns and when everybody has figured them to be goats they have shown tendencies to butt and prove anything but, in no instance tomorrow, however, is this likely to prove the case.

Harvard, with a line of ample size but of unknown quality, engages Boston University, and then Middlebury, in the first football double header in history, and is anxious as do all sport lovers have virtually lost interest in big league baseball, here should greet the Stadium athletics the biggest opening season crowd ever housed in the home town.

What Boston University will offer in the nature of opposition to the Crimson is a pessimistical. It has engaged a new head coach, whose system of football differs markedly from that employed at Harvard and whether the players—many of them are veterans—have caught on to the new and distinctly unique style of attack taught by Coach Wheeler and whether they possess sufficient defensive strength and skill to oppose the bulking Harvard team, are matters the game alone will decide. The chances are however that there will be somewhat lacking in both instances.

Middlebury possessed a good little team last season and its record so impressed the powers that be that Dave Morey the coach was presented with an early season program which calls for meetings with Harvard Dartmouth and West Point on successive weeks and thereby constitutes about as tough an assignment as any small college mentor ever has drawn.

Dave's chief concern should be that of bringing his team through this unusual task with a few injuries as possible, and inasmuch as the former Malden and Dartmouth star has an excellent outfit at his command he is apt to pull it home to keep the ball in Harvard territory.

* * *

Dartmouth's opponent for the day is Norwich, a scrappy little team that has kept the Green busy in its opening games of the past two years, and expects to do so again tomorrow.

* * *

The Dartmouth first-string line-up has been more under fire than has the Harvard array. Thee certain Stiffenberg, Swenson and Kelly have been alternating in that job. Dell Moore, a first-class guard was injured in a recent practice session and several men of almost equal abilities have been battling for other line positions.

Frank Smith at quarter, Captain Jim Roberts and Chuck Burns at the halfback posts and Fullback Murphy at fullback complete what promises to be a fast backfield.

Bosco, with an inexperienced line to oppose Yale tomorrow, Wesleyan and the sheer bulk of the Blue varsity is expected to check any between-the-goals assault of the Middletown State team. Because of this fact coach Lanahan has been putting a fairly thorough test in defensive passing and Bates show aggressive tendencies.

Booked at quarter Aldrich and Mahoney at the halves at fullback Faulds the present varsity scrub and Fullback Bissell the first named getting the call as the result of his showing in the Holy Cross game. Bissell is a veteran with Varsity football material at his back and is one of the best of the incoming new and possibly original in the Yale camp.

Rhode Island starts the Brown's in the path-mate on the gridiron, and in view of the glowing reports from the Bruin training camp Brown men and those concerned with the teams which later will oppose Rodgers's eleven await with interest the debut tomorrow in the opening contest.

Opening ceremonials at Boston College, Cornell, Princeton, Williams, Wesleyan, and among the Western Conference colleges will not materialize until next week but a number of the contests already decided Pennsylvania, Penn State, Pittsburg, Syracuse, West Virginia Washington and Jefferson, Rutgers, Fordham, Colgate, Maine, Georgia Tech, Virginia Military Institute, Centre College, California, Notre Dame, Springfield, Amherst, and many other leaner prominent institutions, embark on the 1921 season tomorrow.

The Springfield-Amherst clash at Springfield has perhaps more the aspect of a game than any other billed for the day. Both colleges have a liberal supply of veterans on hand and some promising new material and there is considerable doubt as to the winner.

JOE EAGAN. LOUIS BOGASH.

Principals in the Main bout of the Commercial A. C.'s big show in Mechanics' Building.

EAGAN AND BOGASH IN BATTLE IN C. A. C. RING

By Jack Conway

Joe Eagan will try to prove he is the best of a very mediocre crop of middleweights when he starts a new come-back drive by meeting Louis Bogash of Bridgeport in a ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Eagan has not boxed in a local ring for close to two years. As a result there is considerable curiosity being shown in his appearance tonight.

When right and determined to really fight, Eagan is one of the most brilliant middleweights the boxing game has had during the past half dozen years. But when he believes he is outclassed or is not trying, the Dorchester man is a very unsatisfactory performer.

* * *

Eagan says he will strive for a decisive victory this p. m. He will have a weight advantage on Bogash. He also believes he can beat the Bridgeport warrior. Furthermore, he is beginning a new drive which events always seem to find Blondy Joseph at his best.

* * *

Bogash recently showed here against Johnny Tillman winning after ten rounds of boxing. He was later signed to meet Eagan, but withdrew from the match on the claim of illness. Lou was then informed that he would not be permitted to box in Massachusetts unless he fought last. He immediately consented to do so.

Bogash says he will force the issue and that he will make a fight of it. He does not believe Eagan will stand up under body blows.

Bogash is a strong, rugged fellow with a punch, but if Eagan is right the Dorchester man should win.

* * *

Patsy Roach, a brother of Johnny and Young Tubes of Worcester, is to box in the semi-final of ten rounds. What those boys met recently, Roach knows the decision after a hard battle.

Kearney Rivers of Worcester will have Billy Gustin of South Boston as opponent in another ten-session affair.

FIRST WORLD'S SERIES GAME OCTOBER 5

Chicago Sept. 23.—The World's Series will start October 5, it was decided yesterday, the first game being played on the home grounds of the national league team.

In the event either Pittsburgh or Cleveland should finish first, two series games will be played in the national league city, the next two in the American league town, and so on.

The details of the series were arranged yesterday at a meeting of the league presidents with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner. President John Heydler of the Cardinals won the toss and the first game for his league.

The games may be played, it was decided, the series going to the winner of five. If a ninth game is played and one of the teams goes out of New York is in the series a week will be allowed to decide the title. If both New York teams are in the series they will move after the eighth game to the other grounds.

FORDHAM SIGNS WITH VIRGINIA WESLEYAN

New York, Sept. 23.—The Fordham football team will meet West Virginia Wesleyan in New York on November 26, it was announced today. Negotiations for the game had been under way for several weeks. As the Army-Navy game will be played at the Polo Grounds on that date, another field will be sought for the Fordham-Wesleyan contest.

CAV. CONDEMNS GRABBING BY BIG COLLEGES

Boston College Coach Disgusted With Way They Run Football

Ben Roderick will not return to Boston College. He is now at Columbia University and intends to stay there.

Coach Cavanaugh returned yesterday and gave the squad a light signal practice, took a turn at running up under punts and finished up with a grass drill.

In his talk to the players Coach Cavanaugh touched upon the way different colleges are grabbing up players for their football teams. While Cavanaugh does not usually say much concerning such actions he pointedly expressed himself on this point in the following words:

I am disgusted with the way football is being run at too big universities.

Wilson and Darling are the two men who are the most likely candidates for the position left vacant by Roderick. Both did pleasing work in the recent scrimmage. Both can boot the pigskin high and far. Wilson has the advantage of having played before under Cavanaugh, but Darling is quickly learning the Cavanaugh way.

The work of the squad today and during the coming week will be in preparation for the Boston University game on October 1. Cavanaugh will devote more time to getting ready for the game with Baylor University at Dallas, Tex., on October 15.

The game with Baylor University is important, for to lose it will be a blow to the prestige of Boston College in the South and West. The people of Texas hold Coach Cavanaugh and the Boston College team in high regard, judging from the newspapers. They expect Boston College to send down a formidable team and Cavanaugh must have ready a team that will not be inferior to the great machine of last season.

A new candidate for the team will, if he makes good, add some much needed weight to the B. C. line. He is Jim Ryan of Medford, who weighs close to 215 pounds. Ryan plays tackle and would go well with Paton, who weighs about 200 pounds.

The school boys ring up the curtain on a new football year, playing three scheduled games today. Everett High Field; Coach Henry Lands over to Winthrop to play the John Manter, and Henry McDevitt Danvers High eleven.

This is the opening of what promises to be the biggest football year in the history of the pigskin game. Favorable weather is all that is needed.

The result of these three contests today will have little effect on any of the teams, but notwithstanding, the coaches want to impress their rivals with their strength.

Lynn should have little trouble vanquishing Chelsea, as this season's work will be the preliminary building up of the last-named team, according to Coach Sumner Davis, who has taken up the task of restoring football in that city.

Coach Henry Carroll of Brookline has an entirely new line to pit against his opponents in the Suburban League. He has good men in Chase, Metcalf, Southwick and Captain Mitchell, who will play an end. Winthrop will be on the short end of the scoring, according to dope, but the game is but a preliminary affair to a lot of real hard contests coming later in the Fall.

Little is known of the Danvers team, but if Salem shows any of last year's knowledge of the gridiron game it should have little trouble running over Danvers.

Fred Sheehan, formerly of Abington High, captain of its football and baseball teams and a guard on St. John's Prep eleven, has entered Georgetown University and is a candidate, under Coach John O'Reilly, for a place on the varsity eleven.

"Cy" Happen, three-letter man at Waltham some three years ago, has entered the University of Illinois and he intends to take an active part in football and baseball.

Wesleyan is foremost in all lines of sport, will this year be represented by a speedy football team. The backfield has been strengthened by the addition of McEachern, considered by many to be one of the fastest halfbacks in schoolboy ranks, and McDonough, a veteran of two campaigns.

SYRACUSE TO TRY NEW PLAYS AGAINST HOBART

Syracuse, Sept. 23.— That the Syracuse eleven will be in good condition for its opening game of the season with Hobart in the big Archbold Stadium here next Saturday is probable, as only Benny Moses, the sterling quarterback, is not in the best of physical condition just now. He has been suffering from an injured ankle, but is likely to be in such shape that he can be pressed into service Saturday if it is necessary for Coach John F. ("Chick") Meehan to use him.

Only straight football will probably be used against Hobart, although one or two of the new plays which have been tried out daily behind closed gates may be used just to see with what degree of success the men can handle them.

FEAR ENGLISH GOLFER IN TITLE TOURNEY

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23.—Several thousand spectators who saw Willie Hunter defeat Bobby Jones in the third round of the National Amateur Golf championship, at last came to a realization that American supremacy in this year's title [illegible] threatened.

It had been recognized by Hunter's play in his first two matches [illegible] was a dangerous factor, yet there was a feeling of confidence in Bobby Jones so that the galleryites trooped along after the pair, wondering [illegible] point Bobby would put on the finishing touches.

• • •

The lead of 2 up for Jones in the morning solidified this confidence. But when Bobby was trapped on his second shot to the first hole in the afternoon, losing it 4 to 5, followed by the loss of the third hole and a [illegible] match, it became apparent [illegible] here was a struggle of gigantic golfing proportions.

• • •

This slightly-built Englishman, totally impervious to his surroundings, to the brilliancy of his opponent and to anything except getting the ball from the tee to the [illegible] with the [illegible] number of strokes, allowed nothing to disconcert his equanimity.

• • •

He proved himself a fighter from the word go and when the pinch was on, when he was one down and five to play, he stepped up and holed a beautiful putt for a birdie to square the match, and holed another beauty to win the sixteenth to make the match dormie. Under all the stress of a match against the youth who had been picked by many to win the tournament, at

• • •

[illegible] 2 down and 18 to play, the British champion acted as if on [illegible] and reached the turn in 36, [illegible] the match all square. There [illegible] a point later where only the [illegible] spectator of golfers would [illegible] he held himself in hand and avoided the pitfalls of lost confidence.

• • •

At the long thirteenth Bobby Jones topped his drive. Coming on this long hole it was a reasonable deduction that it would cost the Southern boy at least a stroke and that Hunter would win the hole. But Bobby hit an iron short of some bunkers which guard second shots, then laged a brassie to the green and actually won the hole instead of losing it, for Hunter was bunkered on his second and took four to reach the green.

• • •

None but a man of steel nerves and regular championship timber could have taken that reversal with such equanimity as did Hunter, which he proved when at the very next hole he sank his long putt for a birdie to square the match.

• • •

[illegible] of less than a yard, the kind that were my undoing the day before which put Hunter into a rout which he increased at the next hole

• • •

The present champion, Chick Evans, and an exchampion [illegible] were left in the running after the third round along with Jesse Guilford, partner, Jesse Guilford. If Willie Hunter can get past Gardner today, and the winner of the Guilford-Evans match tomorrow he is surely a wonder and will be deserving of the international honors.

• • •

It would seem as if Bob Gardner had yet to hit his best stride and today may be the time. He played well enough yesterday to win by 4 and 2 from that steady golfer, Robbins Knepper and it would seem to me that he has been going along rather easily. Like Hunter, he is at his best under fire.

• • •

Chick Evans and Jesse Guilford, the other pair who clash today, had to go to the 20th hole yesterday before they won and it is significant that under the pressure of a home-hole finish, Chick in his match with Jesse Sweetser laid his second on the green about twelve feet from the cup and dropped the putt for a birdie, while Jesse was no more than eight feet away in two and did not need to get the putt to have the mastery, as he had gained the lead of one up over Harrison R. Johnston at the seventeenth hole.

• • •

When Evans increased his morning lead of two up over Sweetser to four at the three hole of the afternoon, it looked like easy picking, instead of which as events turned out, he almost tumbled into a hornet's nest. He was still four up at the turn, but dropped the tenth and almost the eleventh, for Sweetser's putt to win went up to the lip of the cup but would not drop.

• • •

Evans became four up and five to play before Sweetser made his last stand to such an effort that he won the fourteenth, fifteenth and seventeenth, aided by Chick's faulty play.

• • •

Then at the home hole Chick gathered his forces and put on the pinchers with his putt for a birdie, which blotted out any chance that Sweetser had of running down his shorter one to win the hole and take the match to an extra hole.

Mrs. Mallory Will Go After Title Held by Mlle. Lenglen

New York, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national woman tennis champion, will make an attempt next year to wrest the world's championship laurels from Suzanne Lenglen of France.

It was learned today that the American titleholder, who had won one set from the French player when Mlle. Lenglen defaulted in the American tournament last month, will go to England next Spring to compete in the Wimbledon tournament.

GIRL GOLF CHAMPIONS IN SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Two of the world's greatest women golfers—Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, champion of the United States and Canada, and Miss Cecil Leitch, the English title holder—met today in one half of the Canadian women's championship tournament.

Miss Leitch was picked to win by many of the experts who have followed the week's play, although was conceded the match probably would be close.

Miss Edith Leitch, sister of the English champion, also has reached the semi-final and was pitted today against Miss Molly McBride of Beaconsfield. Should both the Leitch sisters win today they would meet in the title round, scheduled for tomorrow.

ROXBURY CASEY TEAMS PLAY FOR TITLE

Mt. Pleasant and Rose Croix Nines in Post Season Series

Tomorrow and Sunday afternoons Mt. Pleasant K. C. and Rose Croix K. C. will play the first and second games of their annual post-season series for the K. C. championship of Roxbury.

These two teams have been rivals for years, and as both have been strengthened for the series, Roxbury fans are due to see some red hot contests.

The high-grade ball displayed by the Mt. Pleasant team last Sunday at Marcella street, when it defeated the strong Roxbury Foresters most decisively, 16 to 0, make them strong favorites with the fans of that section and is the reason for the series being played at the Marcella Street Grounds.

Tierney and Ryan will be the battery for Mt. Pleasant in the first game, while Gildea and Flynn will be in the points for Rose Croix, Sunday. Smith will oppose either Kelley or Cavanaugh.

Flyweight Champion Goes After Bantam Title Tonight

CAMBRIDGE RUNNER SETS NEW 500-METRE MARK

Stockholm, Sept. 23.—H. D. Morrain, the Cambridge University runner, today, at an athletic meeting won the 500-metres race in one minute five and one-sixteenth seconds. It is claimed that this is a world's record.

The world's record for 500 metres previously was held by F. Rajz, of Hungary, who made the distance in one minute seven and six-tenths seconds, in 1913.

Last Night's Fights

At Tulsa, Okla.—Bob Roper, Chicago heavyweight, knocked out Carl Morris in the third round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

RED SOX TACKLE BROWNS IN DOUBLE-HEADER AT FENWAY PARK

By NICK FLATLEY

Last chance at a section of the World's Series profits was offered the Red Sox today. They assaulted the Browns in a couple of games, and a clonmp meant a perch not far removed from the third rung of the A. L. ladder.

The Brownies are three and a half games in front of the Duffys, and are playing baseball. But a double jolt today, and the same on the morrow would just put them back of our striking athletes who have been having good baseball for the greater part of the last month.

Double-headers were on the program today and tomorrow as well the regularly scheduled game for Monday having been moved ahead to give the teams a chance to travel without making rear pursuits through stations.

* * *

Monday will be an off day in Boston, which will not worry anybody much, as baseball interest just now is all concentrated on the Polo Grounds, where the Indians and Yanks are deciding just which team will carry the A. L. banner into the series against the Giants.

* * *

Bullet Joseph Bush will endeavor to win his tenth straight this afternoon in one of the contests, while Rogers will probably be sent after the other.

An victory means something like $500 to each of the Sox if they can arrive back of the real contenders, you can wager that the team will be fighting for all possible breaks.

* * *

The Indians are groggy and trail weary. They showed that in their real shot at the Red Sox. They built up a monumental lead in the early chapters, kicked and booted it at carriage away and had to go down to the twelfth chapter before they could finally chase over the run that meant victory.

Champions won, and held right onto the Yankees, but their victory wasn't at all impressive. They had luck with them, and a fighting team would have simply buried those Spankers. The sox had chance after chance, and seemed them all up.

* * *

The pick owners booted and buried the ball around in fashion that bodes ill for their success in the all-important series that opens today in the Polo Grounds.

* * *

The Indians won, 9 to 8, but it took them almost three hours to do it, and but for an unfortunate selection of native pinch hitters they would have departed without anything to make the tram jump joyful.

* * *

It was the most terrific ball game that the oldest inhabitant remembers. The champions made five fearful errors; there were ten sacrifice hits; there were fourteen bases on balls issued during the fray. Three batters were hit, and all in all, the afternoon was full of such stuff that the twilight leaguers would blush about.

* * *

The Indians had a six-run lead when their fourth went into history, but they blundered and stumbled along and let the Sox six things up eventually in the eighth. Pootes played an important part in the Fenway scoring, at least half the runs being due to hostile misplays.

* * *

Sothoron and Russell opened up on the mound. The Duffy spitballer was hit hard and vanished after four runs had been manufactured off him in the second. Thormahlen followed for a few wild flashes and then Elmer Meyers stepped in and flung real baseball down to the Smiths. He gets the defeat, but he did the best pitching of the p. m. just the same.

* * *

The Sox went out to bust Rotheron into oblivion, and they did just that. Before Morton was called to the rescue in the fourth, Allen had penetrated two wild heaves and gummed up more slow rollers than most pitchers fool with in a season.

* * *

The Morton party would have won in regulation distance had not Sewall dropped a gentle pop fly in fourth and let two ridiculous runs trickle across the saucer.

* * *

The veteran was nicked for the tieing runs in the eighth, but after that he steadied and could have pitched his way through till dusk.

* * *

Manager Speaker, just able to limp about, showed some of his wonderful courage by going in to pinch hit in the last frame. Steve O'Neill had doubled with one out. Speke collected one long foul into the bleachers, and then rolled one at Wamby and died at first, though Pete nearly tore his leg off spiraling down.

BRAVES START DRIVE FOR THIRD POSITION

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The Braves opened their last Western series in the Windy City today. The Mitchmen have a good chance to finish in third place and, by heck and gravy, they are out to do it. They play here tomorrow and also on Sunday, and then bid good bye to the wild and woolly section of the land of the free and the home of the courageous.

Then they depart for home, for they have a few games to play with Brooklyn. They hope to crush the Cubs here and also the Robins next week at home and then finish the season a week from tomorrow at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. The Braves have a game with the Giants at the Polo Grounds one week from today, the day that the rousing benefit for Christy Mathewson will be staged by the Giants, Reds and everybody else.

The Cardinals are now in third place but they must play the Giants a series and also finish with a four-game series with the Pirates. The Cards push pooh at the notion that any of the Boston entry is finish third and say watch more, it will go end all over, but just now it looks like pass the Pirates and come in second for the Giants.

Stranger things have happened for certainly the Branch Rickeyites are a wild, bad ball club.

All the Braves feel that the race is over and that the Giants are sure sure to fly the burgee from centre field of the Polo terrain. The defeat suffered by the Pirates in splitting the twin bill with the Robins yesterday hurt them maternally. But the Pirates have a splendid opportunity to recoup for the next few days for they will be entertaining angels unawares, the Phillies, while the Giants must tackle those raring, tearing Cards.

However, soon the agony will be over and just now it looks like the Giants.

SIGNS KILLEFER TO MANAGE CUBS AGAIN

Chosen to Succeed Evers as Temporary Leader, Now Has Job for Good

Bill Killefer has been signed to manage the Chicago Cubs for 1922—a job which, in all probability, he did not seek or especially want.

He was chosen to succeed Johnny Evers under an agreement that was to be temporary and so understood. He has not shown any improvement in the team or in the team spirit, but evidently has shown enough capability to convince the owners that he can handle a ball club.

Killefer is one of the best types of ball players—rather reckless, good natured, smart and a good fellow. Just what sort of a manager of men he will make is another matter.

The Cubs have had troubles with managers ever since the days of Chance. They chose Tinker, Evers, O'Day, Mitchell, Evers—and pronounced all failures.

Evers, it is reported, was chased off the club for "riding" the players. In the early season when Evers was riding them and spurring them to victory he was a hero. When they quit under him they blamed the Jockey instead of the horse.

Says a Millionaire Who Is Busy Making Money Is Always Being Pestered, but a Poor Fellow Who Is Going Hungry Is Never Interrupted

Lots of men with millions have become famous because they are wealthy, but nobody ever hears of the poor guy, the bird who only needs nine cents to bring his bankroll up to a dime.

The poor man would drop dead if a millionaire offered him a dollar. So far there hasn't been much of a casualty list.

The average working man comes into the world with nothing and goes out the same way.

He didn't have anything when he started in life and he's managed to hang on to it.

A millionaire loses a thousand dollars on the curb and goes home smiling. Apoor man loses a quarter in the street and goes home hungry

A rich man steals ten thousand dollars from a friend and that's business. A penniless man steals fifty cents from a stranger and that's grand larceny.

To one it is a joke, to the other it is a job.

The jobless man is an actor in a drama called "Hunger." He plays three shows a day with an extra matinee on Saturday and Sunday.

The poor man has one consolation. While he's broke today, tomorrow he may have twice as much.

A millionaire who is busy making money is always being pestered by people, but a poor guy who is going hungry is never interrupted.

He can starve as fast as he wants and nobody will decay him.

Going hungry is an art and there are always lots of students.

But the only roll call they ever attend is the bread line.

McINNES MAKES FINE RECORD ON DIAMOND

"Stuffy" Has Just Turned 100 Errorless Games; Third Among First Basemen

Stuffy McInnis has set a record which perhaps will stand for many generations of ball players. He has played 100 ball games without an error, a record which no other player ever even thought of.

Stuffy, with all his mechanical ability and with all his power of hitting is noted at finding his perfect throwing and his unbeatable fielding call ranks right among the first basemen of the country.

Managers would prefer Sisler or Hellman to Stuffy who is partial to penalty of the veteran. If any youngster ever approached the record he has set he would be hailed as the greatest the world has ever known, but Stuffy, having been on a championship club and gone back to a second rater, receives scant attention.

He is a great ball player. If he had been sent red with the desire to win with the earnestness and the fighting spirit of some others he would have been rated as the greatest in history.

Because he has been "Stuffy," good-natured, easy-going, satisfied to do his best and to help others, he perhaps will be forgotten, but never by the fellows who love pure sportsmanship rather than money or high salaries.

MOTHER OF HOME-RUN BAKER DEAD AT 71

Easton, Md., Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mary Baker, seventy-one years old, mother of J. Franklin Baker, Yankee star and former baseball king, died at her home near Trappe, Md., today.

Mrs. Baker's death was caused by cancer of the stomach. Baker who received word of his mother's serious illness while the Yankees were playing here, has rushed home and reached the bedside of his dying mother before the end came.

Baker today is grief stricken and it is believed he will again play ball this season.

INDIANS-YANKS STAGE LITTLE WORLD SERIES IN FLAG FIGHT

New York, Sept. 23 -Big doings up in Harlem today.

Indians on the warpath! Yank s in a fightin' mood? Thirty thousand odd fans elbowing each other in a rush for the best seats. Platoons of cops. Hot dogs. Crucial series.

Gotham was agog with excitement as the Yankees prepared to call it a world's champions against the Yankees in the first of a four-game series that is expected to decide the American League pennant. And not without reason.

Never before in the history of either major league has there been a championship race of such long sustained competition between two clubs.

For two months the Yanks and Indians have slammed each other about in the fight for the lead.

First one, then the other, has been on top and today they are practically tied with a percentage point and a fraction separating first and second places.

The hike over the long trail from April has brought them down to this standing:

	Won	Lost	Per-centage
New York	91	53	.6310
Cleveland	90	54	.6250

The battle for the pennant will rage here for four days. It amounts to a little World Series. New York has never before had such bright prospects of supporting an American League champion team and the fans have fallen over each other in the battle for reserved seats.

Every reserved and every box seat has been sold for all four games. Traffic policemen were called into service in front of the Yankee offices in Forty-second street while the mad was on, and it is conservatively estimated that the attendance during the series will be close to 145,000.

Pennant races in other years have waxed furious, but never has a race attracted the attention that the Yanks and Cleveland have created. Fans will remember the famous Cuba-Giants-Providence race of 1904.

They will also recall that the White Sox, Cleveland and Detroits fought a terrific three-cornered battle for the American League flag the same year.

It is believed the ghosts of the Indians in 1918 and 1919 when they were contenders to Boston and Chicago, and the winning of the pennant after a hard fight by Cleveland last year.

But the present battle eclipses everything that has gone before.

NEIDLINGER STARS AT HALF IN YALE GRID PRACTICE

New Haven, Sept. 23.—Head Coach Tad Jones started most of the Yale varsity squad in a few of their attempts at touches of the last two days, but sent Russell Murphy at quarterback and Ira Wight at fullback.

Newell Neidlinger was placed at right half and started with a three yard run which netted the only touchdown of the afternoon. Wight kicking the goal. Tony Hulman and Ted Hoyt at ends were in good form. Major Louis Seaford and Johnny Field joined the squad.

CADDY SUES GOLFER FOR $95,000 FOR LOSS OF EYE

New York, Sept. 23.—A suit for $95,000 damages for the loss of his right eye, blinded by a blow from a golf ball has been brought by Cornelius Tooley, fourteen-year-old caddy against Frank G. Wheater of East Orange, N. J. Tooley charges Wheater with negligence contending that the player in hitting the ball from a spot fifty yards from the putting green made no effort to avoid hitting him.

Eddie Shevlin will journey to Holyoke today to box an exhibition at the benefit for Chick West the boxer of that city who is having his eyesight dimmed by cataracts. Eddie says he will send a check as his bit but if any one can stand him to appear in person he says he'll do that, too. He has been in the game for years and is well known in the ring circles of Boston and vicinity.

THE ACTION SO FAR.

Owen Storrow, a young sculptor, coming to New York to express himself in his art, meets Torrie Throssel, a strikingly lovely girl, under unusual circumstances, and she falls in love with him. Storrow goes to the luxurious home of his stepaunt, who has offered him a studio there. He meets Charlotte Kirkner, his cousin, whom he saves from drowning, thereby winning her affection. Storrow leaves his aunt's home, takes a studio in New York and discovers Torrie next door. He finds himself more and more in love with Torrie, who has been cast for a part in a play under the direction of Herman Krassler, who sees in her great promise. Storrow, under pressure of pecuniary circumstances, tells the police that Torrie is Mrs. Storrow. He goes to hear Torrie rehearsing under Krassler's direction, and suddenly decides to ask her to marry him. Torrie hears him with amazement.

"Will you marry me?" Storrow asks the surprised Torrie.

Drawn by James Montgomery Flagg

"Do you love me?" Torrie finally demanded

"You know I do" was Storrow's retort

"But are you sure—"

"I'm trying to prove it"

"How?"

By asking you to marry me," he reminded, wondering at the combative note which he could not keep from his voice

"What difference can that make?" she demanded. "Having some old man mumble a few words and then poking a metal ring on my third finger. Would it change everything if he should come up one single night?"

"It won't change everything" he contended, alraid at what seemed sheer paganism in her. Once more she fell to studying his face. In it, apparently, she read all the arguments which his tongue had failed to utter, for her eyes grew hazy. It was slowly clouded with a frown of thought Krassler would call me," she said, as much to herself as to the man beside her.

"What has Krassler got to do with it?" quickly countered the other

That question appeared to be no easy one to answer.

"Can't you see, Owen, what Krasser's doing for me? He's trying to make me into a screwsy He says he's giving me the chance of a lifetime He says he'll pitch me head first into Broadway if I'll only put myself in his hands Ife even claims he can make me a star inside of two seasons."

"What do you mean by putting yourself in his hands?"

That offhand intimacy of action and it was both too unconscious and too characteristic to be set down as audacity. It was innocent, he reminded himself, because it was unstudied. But he remained quietly turned away from the full possession of his senses with it."

Will you marry me?" he repeated

"I can caught the sigh that escaped her, it was almost one of pleasure

Wait until I crawl into my grave, Hunky. I'm dog-tired" it waited He waited until he heard her fatigued little coo of ambulence, listening to the complaint of the burdened coil-springs with a sense of history repeating itself "Now" she called out to him.

He swung about nettled by a feeling of frustration But he made no movement towards her She was with her hand supporting her head studying him out of veiled eyes

"Come here" she said in a strangely altered voice

Slowly he crossed to her side, puzzling as to what unknown hand could be wringing the glory out of a situation from which he had once anticipated both rapture and tedium. She, too, seemed to feel that something was lacking from the encounter, something rare and desirable something already vanished and evaporated She dropped back on her pillow, almost listlessly, and lay there for a moment or two without speaking

Trying to Prove It

"Do you love me?" Torrie finally demanded

"You know I do" was Storrow's retort

"But are you sure—"

"I'm trying to prove it"

"How?"

By asking you to marry me," he reminded, wondering at the combative note which he could not keep from his voice

"What difference can that make?" she demanded. "Having some old man mumble a few words and then poking a metal ring on my third finger. Would it change everything if he should come up one single night?"

"What do you mean by putting yourself in his hands?"

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Comes to New York Hoping to Win His Way to Fortune in the Metropolis

She was apparently making it a point to be very patient with him.

"I mean doing my work, the way it ought to be done

"I imagine there are more Krasslers than one in this city," retorted Storrow, recovered by some incongruous sudden sense of entertainment between him and the woman so close to her

"That's where you're wrong," she amended "There's only one Krassler I may be easily goaded, but I've fallen enough to see that if I can ever do anything on the stage it's because he's standing behind me. He knows acting, every trick and move of it. He makes me feel that I'm only a mask and that it's his spirit stepping inside that mask and doing what I ought to do. He holds me up where I'd go down in two minutes"

It dismayed Storrow to find his own inner confusions thus openly recorded

"There seem to be several hundred that Krassler isn't holding up as you put it it"

"But don't you see Owen, that I'm different. Acting is a matter of instinct it's an art I'm an art you a matter years of study and what's more I have never had to study it that way" What it was doing to pour out all of stage desiring and stage self-pity, so long as we're true to each other, whether we're scrubbed out names in some fat old city clerk's register or not. That may make"—

An End to All

"Then if it's that trivial to you," he interrupted, "why can't you respect my wishes in the matter"

"But it's not so trivial, in one way There's my work to think of. People aren't interested in a married stage star They're not, at least, unless she's a great artist, and I know well enough I'm not that and never can be. And Krassler would never stand for it, even from the business viewpoint. It would and everything."

"Then why not let it. If that's the absurd condition it imposes on you?" he demanded through the dust of his own cyclonic upheavals. He failed to decipher latent reproof in the quick look which she threw at him over her shoulder

"Are you making this" she said with an arrested judicial note in her voice, "a choice between you or my work"

"They shouldn't have anything to do with each other," he countered. "There's nothing I'm asking you to give up except an endless chain of evasions and humiliations and sacrifices of self-respect. And I don't see how those things can help any woman in her work"

She inspected him with a half-humorous forbearance. Smiling reassuringly, she slipped down between the tumbled covers, with a series of small movements touched with impatience, as though to banish discomfort of the mind in deliberately achieved comfort of the body. Then she reached languidly out and took possession of Storrow's hand.

"Stop worrying over trifles, Honey!"

He drew back, freeing his hand "But this thing has to be settled" he averred. "Will you marry me?"

She opened her eyes again "Come here," she whispered "No—closer Still closer . . . Do you love me?"

"You know I do."

A Wave of Feeling

"But you must say it. Say it, and say it again. Tell it to me in some different way. I don't seem to care what happens when I hear you that. Do you love me?"

She turned about heavily, with her hands clinging to his shoulders so that his stooping body was brought closer to hers "Do you love me?" she reiterated, with his head clasped against the hollow of her shoulder. She held him there hungrily And under the invisible batteries of the old appeal the old capitulation once more took place. He told her, with a sudden flare-back of passion, that he loved her better than life itself, that life without her could mean nothing that he wanted her as no man had ever before wanted woman

"Then I'll marry you," she told him with a sigh of moderated surrender. "But there's one thing you must promise me, Owen."

What is that"

"For the next few months at least no one must know"

He was less ready to accede to this than she had expected

But you can't keep it from being known," he explained. "It has to go on a public record and be announced"

"Is that necessary?"

"Absolutely"

"Then I suppose it is" she said, after an interval of reflection. "But I'll try to keep it from being known as long as I can"

"Why?"

"Because I'm afraid of what it may do to me"

MADELINE'S MISTAKE

A STORY OF A GIRL WHO WAS TOO CLEVER

By Will H. Greenfield

"CONFESSION, however" laughed Madeline Blake, "is not as good for one's reputation as I had once supposed. I remember that I am not admitting that I have anything to confess"

Vincent Kerner agreed. Maybe not," he said, but I had hoped you would tell me all about it before I got it from the newspapers"

Madeline Blake thoughtfully smoothed the apricot evening gown and her red, full lips parted in a smile

"You will find, Vincent, that there are compensations for the loss of the public prints. I know all your fellow-citizens will want to call them by their first names I don't want a mere little local husband who thanks God every night that his wife is too homely to be talked about"

Seen Smoking

"But you were smoking cigarettes, Madeline, and you know that I hold such women as despised by even the class of men who call themselves sports You were even smoking in golf

"Yes," Miss Madeline cautiously, watching herself like an actress with a fleeting role to sustain "Well there's a story goes with that, Vincent. We were hiking to the old Red Lion Inn that day when it began to rain, and we boarded the local for home, just fourteen weary, bedraggled young folks Bob Weston pilored some of the party to the only seats vacant in the smoker He lighted a cigarette [illegible] others settled themselves to slumber.

At length Bob nodded too, and his lighted cigarette dropped lower and lower in his careless fingers It would assuredly have meant a burnt coat for the poor fellow, so I leaned out my hand and took the smelly thing Just then the train gave a sudden lurch and all eyes turned to me accordingly with a lighted cigarette in her hand"

Madeline!" There was stark incredulity in Vincent Kerner's tones but he was astonished to find a hot sensation of delight penetrating his system

You don't believe it eh" Bob wanted to explain the matter to me, but I would not let him He praised my contempt for public opinion — he asked me to marry him. I refused him. But now—" She broke off and ran to the telephone "Hello Central! Let me have Hollywood 1492, please" [illegible] Mr Weston? It is"

"Well this is Miss Blake—Madeline Blake, you know Yes that little incident of the cigarette on the train—I can't convince a certain party that I wasn't smoking No—positively I won't permit you to say a word, but I have reconsidered my answer to you— Yes I see I'm going to break my engagement with Vincent Kerner, you see, and you may call"

Dragged Her Away

Vincent Kerner dragged her away from the phone and slammed the receiver down on the hook. "Forgive me, Madeline!" he cried Don't throw me over—well, be married now—in an hour! Madeline, won't you forgive me, dear"

But before Madeline Blake could frame her answer, the door opened and a pink, chubby-faced youth burst in with the assured manner of a regular and welcome visitor

"Sweetie, I thought"—he began, and then ceased to articulate as he caught the look on her face, though his lips continued to move in babbling self-communion

"Weston," said Vincent, his voice contemptuous, "Miss Blake was just featuring you in what I thought was a dialogue, but which your arrival convinces me was a clever monologue. Get her to finish it for you, old chap, while I toddle along. It's awfully clever, I assure you!"

Cause for Anger

He—Suppose I were to attempt to steal a kiss—would you be angry?

"I need the relaxation of a hot bath and a good night's rest." I protested, eager to seize upon this fortunate opportunity to get away without a scene with Jeanie. "Will you be hurt if I ask you to get rid of my ticket somehow or other and try to enjoy the show without me"

"Of course, we'll be hurt!" replied Jeanie. "We've ordered three tickets and the agent promised to have good ones. No you're expected at the party and you mustn't refuse. How did you find Neal?

For a moment I was on the verge of pretending that I'd seen Neal in order to avoid a discussion of my disagreement with Phoebe. Then I saw how to use the situation to greater advantage. I must have this evening alone to pack and to get myself established somewhere for the night. I'd promised Phoebe, and I found myself now as anxious as she that my promise be kept.

A Letter from Jim

"I was delayed. I didn't see Neal." I explained "Will you send Lyons back after he's taken you to the theatre? I'll postpone the hot bath for an hour or so, on Neal's account. And you won't blame me if I give up the theatre, too?"

No one appeared to notice how I stumbled as I stretched facts to my need. Neal was a good enough excuse to account to Jeanie for my unwillingness to go to the theatre."

Directly the theatre-goers had left I flew to my room and rushed my packing with such zest that I had my trunk locked and suitcase and handbag ready in no time at all. Lyons reported just as I was finishing, but I sent down word that I wasn't ready. Then I sat down to the task of writing Jeanie After a moment or two of thought, I decided on the truth—or part of it

"Dear Jeanie and Pat" I wrote. "I'm running away from home like the naughty girl you'll think me when you find I've gone back to work On returning to the ranks of the self-supporting I'm determined Name it ennui or stubbornness or the call of the blood or whatever you like, but I can't endure the idleness a moment longer

"To avoid arguments, I'm going to get myself nicely established at a rest before I trust myself within call of your persuasive and altogether feminine voices and weapons Please, dears, go on loving me— and let me work this out as part of our Jim's problem and with the same fairness I'm trying to show in not interfering with what he feels is the right thing for him to do. You'll hear from me in a day or two. So don't worry about your runaway, but devoted, Anne"

I fastened the note conspicuously to my trunk, seized the small luggage in which I'd stowed all I needed for a week or so, and scarcely down the hall to the elevator. Up to this moment I hadn't solved the problem of where a woman with $2 in her purse could go

As I stepped into the car, the elevator boy grinned and held out a letter to me

"Just 'stributin' the mail," he said

With avid fingers I seized the letter. It was from Jim And its postmark was right here in the city.

A letter from Jim! Postmarked in the city. My head swam and my heart thumped. But I managed to retain my wits long enough to realize that I must read my letter in privacy. So I said hastily to the elevator boy

"Please give these bags to Lyons and tell him I'll be down in fifteen minutes. I have—something to attend to first"

I stepped back into the quiet entranceway which led to Jeanie's apartment, and there, safe from intrusion or question, I tore open Jim's letter and read

"Dearest Girl—I'm giving this to a chap to mail right in the big city, so it will get to you more quickly than if I trusted it to the postal routes from the tiny hole in the wall where I'm staying. I start off with this information, as I'll be in my hat that—womanlike—you've been puzzling over the postmark for ten minutes before jumping into the letter and finding out that I'm on a reason. Maybe you thought for a minute that I was camping on the next corner. Now with masculine efficiency I've explained the mystery."

Tear-Wet Eye

I looked up with tear-wet eyes, through which a smile struggled. I chuckled as I realized how like Jim the beginning was. But I got a lot of joy out of the fact that I hadn't lingered over the postmark at all. If only I could tell Jim and see his responsive grin

"Things are going none too well. I can't write much about my affairs for the simple reason that I've no guarantee that my letters will ever get to you—be unstamped with if they do. This is the fourth, I've written. I'm hoping at least 50 per cent. of 'em reached you

"Also, I hope that you're making out all right without me. You've plenty of good friends and a few own homefolks who'll keep you from getting lonesome. But don't flirt with any handsome foreigners —such as our friend, A. N. Frinstance

"As to when I'll be back, I can't say. I've stumbled across one good friend who's handicapped and who's making for fine [illegible] to help me through a few [illegible] and others. Maybe this will help you to put two and two together and come as near the right answer as five

Stocks Strong in New York; Call Money Still 5%; Foreign Exchange Steady

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES.

Here's a fact that will probably astonish you.

The aggregate market value of investment securities is greater today than it was when the war boom burst fifteen months ago. Here's another fact few people have realized:

The market value of stocks and bonds has recently increased several billion dollars.

* * *

Since the beginning of this month alone the average advance in ten representative industrial stocks has been $5.50 a share.

And the advance in ten representative railroad stocks $3.20 a share.

After all, the broad swings of the security market affect every family in the land. When securities continue declining it means that poorer business must be expected, and that there will be less demand for labor.

* * *

On the other hand, when the security markets enter a sustained upward movement, it forecasts improving business and greater employment.

Such sustained movements are not brought about by the antics of say cliques of bears or bulls, no matter how daring or how powerful. Such movements are governed by fundamental financial, agricultural, industrial, transportation and trade conditions.

This being so, it is well worth nothing what has been taking place in different classes of stocks during the current month, because the recovery has been very much greater than the public has any idea of.

* * *

The following tables reflect what has been happening throughout the whole stock market:

INDUSTRIAL STOCKS.	Price End	Recent High	Adv.
American Loco ...	85	93	plus 8
Anaconda Co. ...	39	39	plus 4
Baldwin Loco ...	75	93	plus 17
Beth.-chem Steel - B	58	58	plus 9
General Elec ...	128	128	plus 7
Ke.ly Springfield T. 32		45	plus 9
Mex. Petroleum...	100	119	plus 19
Studebaker Corp.	73	79	plus 8
U S Rubber ...	45	51	plus 6
U S Steel ...	83	87	plus 4
Average ...	69.70	78.40	plus 8.70.
RAILROAD STOCKS.
Atchison T & S F 85		76	plus 1
Baltimore & Ohio 37		40	plus 2
Chicago R I & P ...	53	57	plus 2
Chesapeake & Ohio 54		57	plus 3
Great Nor pfd ...	73	78	plus 3
Northern Pac ...	73	79	plus 1
Penney ...	38	39	plus 1
Reading ...	73	78	plus 3
Southern Pac ...	76	79	plus 1
Union Pac ...	123	128	plus 1
Average ...	65.80	68.80	Plus 2.30

The silent forces which have been at work in the security markets during recent months have been of far greater importance and significance than the public has realized. Evidence which frequently has been indulged in among the stocks of certain industrial companies, or which speculators have devoted nearly all their attention to churning industrial common stocks.

* * *

Railroad stocks, as a whole, have not been used as speculative footballs. And, of course, bonds have been left alone by the plungers.

But note this. The untrumpeted recovery in the highest grades of investments has been more impressive than the recent switching of professional operators from the bear to the bull side. The movement in railroad securities has been obscured by the fireworks in industrial issues. But the railroad issues are the public utility issues are of greater fundamental importance. Among the industrial stocks only a few have figured more or less prominently on the stock exchange have been the following:

Baldwin Locomotive, American Woolen, Central Leather, International Paper, Pressed Steel Car, Republic Iron & Steel, U. S. Food Products, U. S. Steel.

* * *

But the aggregate par value of the common stocks of these companies is less than $700,000,000 whereas the Pennsylvania Railroad alone has $500,000,000 of stock in the hands of the public. And Floyd W. Mundy, one of the ablest minds among the brokerage houses, aptly remarks:

"Outside of a few issues like U. S. Steel Common stock, the industrials which will have featured for several years are merely dust on the surface of the securities structure." He adds that an average advance of one point in each railroad, public utility, government, State and municipal bond would equal more than $600,000,000, and an average of ten points equals over six thousand million dollars.

* * *

He makes this thoughtful statement:

"Railroads have outstanding over sixteen billions of securities; public utilities, let us say, fifteen billions; State and Government over twenty billions, and besides there are billions of state, municipal and other securities including bonds of all descriptions, which together we designate as the characteristic investments of the average securities. In order to secure a right perspective on developments in our markets, we must keep in mind the fact that despite the general collapse and largely in our opinion because of it, the bulk of the stocks and bonds in this group of, let us suppose, sixty or seventy billions, is higher in market price than in June, 1920."

One cannot but give a favorable answer to this question:

"With this record shown in the past year of collapse may we not expect, when actual earnings shall demonstrate the restoration to their former status of many companies which were almost ruined by the war conditions, that their stocks and bonds will advance?"

* * *

Not much encouragement in all this for those who still wear blue glasses, is there?

PRICES AT NOON SHOW PROFIT TAKING

Baldwin and Mexican Petroleum Are Up and Studebaker Is Down a Fraction

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

While stocks were strong in New York at noon they were below the best level of the morning, profit taking having reduced gains to some extent. But selling pressure was offset by demand. The market had a rather narrow appearance, wheither up or down. Trading was of moderate volume, aggregating less than 300,000 shares for the two hours. Only a few issues, including Baldwin and Mexican Petroleum, were active. Call loans renewed at 5 per cent. Foreign exchange was steady.

Issues of any extent or more gains at their highest were Car & Foundry, American Can, Baldwin, United Drug, American Woolen, Houston, Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Cruciblo, Republic Steel, International Paper and Reading. Studebaker was off a fraction at its lowest and remained down. U. S. Food Products receded 3 to 3, a low record figure.

BEGAN WITH GOOD TONE.

The market began with a good tone at the beginning, advances being general, although small. Covering of shorts accounted for the rise to a considerable extent, although it is reported that some important financial interests are making a little real support. The selling is decidedly professional. Little to indicate public participation was discernible. Burns Brothers opened at a new 1921 high record, Food Products soon sold at a new record low. Studebaker was a very active issue, and after starting with a small gain showed a fractional loss. Baldwin, another leader, quickly moved up over a point. Mexican Petroleum ranged from a point and a half gain to a point loss during the first hour. At the end of that period prices were below the opening level and the market hardened slightly. Call borrowing demand for stocks decreased yesterday. There was no premium on loans. Large returns were reported, especially of Mexican Petroleum and Baldwin.

MONEY ACCUMULATING.

Money is said to be rapidly accumulating in New York, although crop movements have not reached the maximum of the movement, and the supply available for the stock market is far in excess of requirements. In fact, a month or two years ago, demand is trivial. Millions of dollars of time and call loans cannot be placed and lower rate is looked for in the near futures. Offerings of time money are increasing daily, and such amounts that borrowers are lowering bids.

The latest statement shows further improvement in the Federal Reserve ratio, it standing at 81.1 against 87.3 last week. Boston's ratio is 75.1, against 77.3, and that of New York 84.1, as compared with 75.7. Decreases were reported for Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Chicago, Atlanta, Kansas City and Dallas. In financial and business circles the statement of the Reserve and Boston rediscount rates is regarded as a favorable development of great importance.

Railroad Items

For the first seventeen days of September the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company loaded 47,390 cars of freight, 1,000 cars, compared with 67,390 for the same period last year. The road has $10,000,000 of notes matured and renewed to Oct. 1, 1921.

The terminal shops at St. Albans of the Central Vermont Railroad, where 250 men are employed, will close today for an indefinite period. Business conditions are given as the reason.

The Union Pacific deducts the $3,053,700 back mail pay received by it for the month of August, 1920, from its net for eight months, net earnings for the year ending August 31, 1921, behind the corresponding 1920 total.

Solomon Bros. & Hutzler have purchased from the Railroad Administration a total of $1,000,000 of Pennsylvania Railroad notes of the 6% issue, bonds of the Pennsylvania of New Jersey and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy maturing from 1922 to 1927 inclusive.

Silver Is Advancing

The advance in the price of silver is due mainly to increased demand for the metal in India and China. But according to dealers another contributing cause is the diminishing supply. There has been but little silver mined in the United States, the greatest producer, or in Mexico and South America within a year.

BUSINESS HAS TURNED CORNER IN SALT LAKE

Spillane Finds Optimism Among Representative Men of Utah Capital

By RICHARD SPILLANE,

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 23.—Herbert J. Grant, president of the Church of Latter Day Saints and chairman of the board of Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, was one of the thirty gentlemen prominent in industrial, commercial and financial affairs in Utah who met your correspondent at the Chamber of Commerce.

Among the others were H. M. Chamberlain, manager Salt Lake, Walker Bros Bank; W. M. Armstrong, National Copper Bank; L. B. Hampton, local manager Crane Company of Chicago; F. A. Fyfe, president Deseret Dry Goods Company; F. C. Schramm, president Schramm, Johnson Drug Company; Arthur Sweet, West Canada Company; J. W. Collins, vice-president Tracy Loan & Trust Company; N. F. Dicks, manager Utah Flight & Traction Company; Simon Bamberger, Utah Steel Corporation; Merrill Nibley, vice-president Utah-Idaho Sugar Company; Rose Beason, Beason Bond & Investment Company; Dan Byrne, Byrne & Keith's; O'Brien Company, dry goods; B. F. Goodman, president Redman Storage Company; W. S. McCarty, Salt Lake Hardware Company; H. A. Schweikhart, Salt Lake Hardware Company; J. Edward Taylor, president Utah State Farm Bureau; F. C. Richmond, president Richmond Machinery Company; G. N. Child, superintendent public schools; D. A. Gray, Oregon Short line; H. G. Goodwin, Oregon Short line.

CHURCH A FINANCIER.

The Mormon church plays a considerable part in Utah's business life. Its holdings in the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company are said to be 30 per cent. of the total. This company is the largest manufacturing concern in the state, nineteen of its plants being in this Commonwealth. It handled 1,- 200,000 tons of beets last year and turned out 162,588 tons of sugar.

The church has various other activities including the Zion Co-operative Mercantile Institution, an overall factory, a boot and shoe plant and a savings bank. President Grant said the bank had larger deposits than any in Salt Lake. Most of its funds were in connection with the affairs of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company. He was not in favor of the company, like all other sugar corporations, suffering at the great decline in sugar prices.

He went East to arrange for an extension of a large loans it had outstanding. His experiences were not pleasant, for apparently he was not a banker but a financial doctor, was sent here to look into the affairs of the bank and to suggest to the directors and predictions as to how the company were so optimistic that the bankers said he was crazy.

COMPANY MADE GOOD.

The company got aid from a great insurance company and incidentally, from what could be learned from the investigator. Bishop Grant added that sood had come out of the experiences of recent time. The best growers always thought the company got an immense profit.

They know different now. Not only that but the company firing had endeavored to get the producers to sell stock in the bank in order to get the price of sugar. Now they had agreed to this for which he was thankful, but that could be better for all concerned.

Chamberlain said the city banks had been carrying quite a load for the country banks but some of the latter were paying back. Loans dated from the sales of wheat, wool and other products. Business in general was fairly good and the bank prospects very good.

Mr. Grant said Utah was the most under-capitalized section of the United States, the last frontier of undeveloped material. It had more undeveloped resources than any other state and the foreigners were flocking to it with capital. This tended to keep them busy and to keep the banks overloaded. More capital and make it fixed

EDWINA ASHLEY NOW RICHEST GIRL IN WORLD

London, Sept. 23.—Edwina Ashley, pretty twenty-year-old girl, with a low golf handicap and a high jazz standing, became the wealthiest debutante in the world by the sudden death of her grandfather, Sir Ernest Cassel, the great financier and philanthropist.

Before the war Cassel's fortune was estimated at $50,000,000, and it is believed now to be $100,000,000. It is all bequeathed to Edwina, except for donations to Jewish charities.

Cassel's Park lane home, where he was found dead yesterday morning, with his head bowed on a writing desk, is the most expensive private mansion in London. Even the kitchens are walled with marble.

Cassel was born near Cologne, but swore loyalty to England at the outbreak of the war. He was best known on the public as King Edward's friend and financial mentor. He helped King Edward to make big money in the stock market, and was such a regular visitor to the royal palaces that he became known as "Windsor Cassel."

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF MOTION PICTURE WORLD

By FRIEDA DAVIS

IT'S fairly easy to reach some of the people all the time and all people some of the time, but to reach all the people all the time—well, nearly all the time, one must turn to the motion pictures. Mrs. R. Hatheway-Turnbull has learned this and has carried out the idea to good advantage. In case you doubt it, see her movies of animals in the war at Keith's this week.

There's nothing unusual in war films, but what is out of the ordinary is war films showing the part that animals played in the conflict. We have heard stray stories now and then of dogs in the trenches, what they did, how well they put up with the hardships, how much actual work they did in saving soldiers and acting as outposts, and the way they kept up the morale of the army. All these things Mrs. Turnbull proves with pictures—and the camera does not lie.

More than this, she shows what the Blue Cross contained and what it did for the horses, dogs, and the Grand Old Army Mule—and the scene stood in the same relations to the animals, Mrs. Turnbull told me the other afternoon, as the Red Cross did to the soldiers. She showed films of the horses brought back from the front shot, cut and thoroughly examined. Then she showed pictures of them being treated and patched up and sent back to the firing line for more of it. There were even rest camps for the horses, for rest they surely earned after carrying guns, ammunition and rations for the men.

DOGS ALSO SHOWN.

There were, too, pictures of the dogs; dogs of all kinds, big, little, aristocrat and commoner. "No dog was too poor to do his," Mrs. Turnbull said. "The only one that was barred was the bad-tempered bear." We saw them cheering up the soldiers, carrying ammunition and acting as guards in the prison camp and guards on outpost duty.

And so on. Everyone is an animal lover. If he hasn't a dog at home he has a cat or a canary or a horse. The things for which Mrs. Turnbull should be most thanked is that she is bringing before us an entirely new angle of war. "War stuff" the average person exclaims, "Oh, it's cold!" It's not. Although peace, comparatively, has come and gone, the fact is that if we hadn't ever heard of warfare, still such films as Mrs. Turnbull is showing have their place in the sun—and on the vaudeville circuit.

BETTY COMPSON WORKING HARD

SCARCELY has she finished "shooting" the last scene on her second starring picture for Famous Players, than Betty Compson and her director, Penrhyn Stanlaws, rushed over to another "set" to start work on the screen version of Sir James M. Barrie's "Little Minister."

The picture Miss Compson has just finished is "The Woman in the Case," adapted from the Clyde Fitch play of that name. An interesting feature of the production will be the appearance of Cleo Ridgely as the "other woman in the case." Miss Ridgely formerly co-starred with Wallace Reid. William Carleton, who was, it was thought that he would only stay in the land of Kliegs-lights long enough for these productions.

As a matter of fact he is so pleased with film work that he is ready to start work on a third picture, "Ida Hands," by Earl Derr Biggers. Filming was started last week and is going along so easily that United Artists hope to have it ready for early Winter release.

MORE DeMILLE PLAYERS.

THE only information we have been able to get for some time concerning the next Cecil DeMille picture, always an item of interest, has been that the title is "Saturday Night" and that Beatrice Joy and Edith Roberts have been wrested from other companies to appear in leading roles.

Now another bit of news has leaked out. Conrad Nagle and Jack Mower have been chosen as leading men. Nagle has been on the Lasky lot for some months, but Mower is a new acquisition. He, too, is an ex-Universal player like Miss Roberts.

ARLISS NOT TO DESERT SCREEN

WHEN George Arliss agreed to make "Disraeli" and "The Devil," so that posterity should see him as he made them famous, it was thought that he would only stay in the land of Kliegs-lights long enough for these productions.

SPEAKING OF BURLESQUES—

YESTERDAY I spoke of the tendency to burlesque famous novels and plays in tilling comedies. Today I have word that some producer—name was not given—is working on a take-off of the Douglas Fairbanks picture, "The Three Musketeers." He is calling his "The Three and a Half Musketeers."

ROGERS STARTS WITH LASKY.

THAT the announcement that Will Rogers had signed on the dotted line to star in Lasky productions was no idle rumor is certain. Word has come from the "out West" that Rogers is already at work on "The Melancholy Spirit."

This story was originally intended for Arbuckle, but when Rogers was released to take that comedian's place it was switched over. It may seem strange to some that Rogers should be able to qualify for a role intended for Arbuckle. Those "in the know," however, agree that the newcomer will do admirably for the role.

CLOTHES HINTS FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

Expert Advice on Type of Wardrobe They Should Possess Is Given

"I am dressing to please a circle of friends and associates. Is there, then, someone to please whom I am dressing, who could add anything to criticize in my wardrobe?"

This, according to a Boston authority, is the question a young business woman should ask herself, when she goes about choosing her Autumn wardrobe. Then, before she buys a thing, she should sit down and make an analysis of the clothes she already owns.

She should say to herself: "I need clothes first of all, for business. Then I need clothes for social life. For business, one kind of costume is suitable for the eight or more hours of my working day. For social purposes I need things for formal wear, for informal wear, and for sports wear. Now let me see what I have; what I can make do, what I must buy to supplement what I have."

This, some women dressed at 7 of half-past in the morning, and have no chance to change till 6 or after, it often happens that the lady wishes to attend some informal occasion without going home to change. Then all her selections with three adjectives in mind—simplicity, conservatism and appropriateness. Living models wearing clothes that were simple, conservative and appropriate, chosen from the store's display, demonstrated the styles.

Dark and navy blue, black and oxford gray were the colors demonstrated by the living models as suitable for the business woman's hat and dress and coat and suit. The trend for this same, young woman, in general style, was tailor made. This for business hours. A second need of the young woman was considered.

"Most business women dress at 7 of half-past in the morning, and have no chance to change till 6 or after. It often happens that the lady wishes to attend some informal occasion without going home to change. Then she must choose for such things, a dress or a suit which will not be too partyish for business, but which will be appropriate to an informal social affair."

For a dress, Canton crepe and serge over a satin underskirt was shown among others. A change from a simple mesh veil to a flowing veil with marked dots, illustrated the change that can be made for two different occasions in the same hat.

For informal wear, it was shown, the young business woman must keep her clothes appropriate. And to do this she must choose sensible, darker colors and simplicity in cut and design. Which principles were amply illustrated from garments chosen from the Hovey stock, by Hovey salesgirls, walking about to the room to demonstrate.

Senator Capper Against Tax Exemption

He Says It Increases Lack of Employment

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Senator Capper of Kansas sets a good example to other Congressmen in his fight against exemption of property from national taxation. Ten billions of dollars, at least, of first-class securities are owned by rich men, and they pay not one penny to government on income received from these "tax-exempt" values. It is an outrage on business, and, as Senator Capper truly says, it is largely responsible for the lack of employment.

The New York Times is much amused because Senator Capper says that tax-exempt securities are responsible for idle men.

The facts are plain. If a man can invest his money with absolute safety at 6 or 7 per cent. and pay no tax to the government, he will, of course, not invest that money in new enterprises, employing labor, with risk and trouble, and the necessity of paying part of the profits to the government.

Why should a man build a factory and give jobs to idle workmen when, instead, he can take the money, buy State or city bonds, draw a usurious rate of interest, pay the government nothing, take no risk and lead an idle life?

The government has recently changed the income tax, as the New York Times very truly says, to give great relief to men that have the biggest incomes. Perhaps under these conditions those men, one of whom has more power in control of government than a thousand ordinary men, will permit a constitutional amendment doing away with the tax-exempt securities.

There should be, as Senator Capper suggests, a Constitutional Amendment, making it impossible for those that have the most money to find in the "tax-exempt" securities a kind of bomb-proof cyclone cellar in which they can hide their money away from taxation, while smaller people are taxed fully.

The attitude of Congressmen, Senators and Representatives on this matter will prove a fairly good "Who's Who." If you can find out who in Congress OBJECTS to abolishing the tax-exempt system for the benefit of a few, you will also find out who is CONTROLLED, not by his constituents, but by the few that have the most money, and want to put it where it will be safe from the tax collector.

One Road to Prosperity

The Signboard Reads "This Way to Optimism and Cheerfulness"

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Be slow to believe in BAD news, slow to listen to chronic pessimists.

The country has had several years of gloom. Part of it was caused by war-time profiteering, extravagance, waste and dishonesty.

A good deal of it has been caused by the psychology of DISCOURAGEMENT.

If you say often enough, "The times are bad and getting worse," they will eventually be really bad, and get worse.

But if you say as you should, often enough, "Times are not as good as they might be, but I am going to do what I can to make them better"—that will help.

As a matter of fact, in this country, men best informed believe that the worst has gone by.

Foreign nations are troubled, because they lack goods, haven't raw materials. The trouble in this country is that we have TOO MUCH IN THE WAY OF GOODS AND RAW MATERIALS.

We certainly can congratulate ourselves on the fact that our trouble is possessing MORE than we need, and not being able to get rid of it.

What is most serious, of course, is the idleness of more than 5,000,000 men throughout the country. At the same time, the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Davis, reminds you that in 1914 there were SEVEN millions idle, and we did not at that time, at least until the war began, talk about desperately hard times.

All that is required in this country is the intelligence to put the men to work, for the work is here, and the goods are here.

It is as though you had idle teams of horses, and fields that needed plowing and harrowing. Sooner or later it would occur to somebody to put the horses to work plowing the land.

President Harding has already selected a committee of able men to deal with the problem of unemployment.

The Federal Reserve Bank reports a gain for a week of one thousand million dollars in "personal debits" at banks. Money is being drawn out and spent, and it cannot be spent without employing labor and buying goods.

Instead of thinking and talking constantly about the EVIL things that have happened, talk occasionally about this country's great GOOD fortune, and the evil things that have NOT happened.

Our money is the best in the world. When a man gets a dollar here, he gets three dollars worth of French money, twenty dollars worth of German money. He gets REAL money.

We went through a war, and spent a great deal. But, providentially for this nation, the war stopped before we really had started spending as it might have been done.

Our total expenditures were less than one year's income of the United States. A man or a nation can stand the loss of one year's income if he keeps his life and his health.

Other nations were bled white; they lost millions of their best young men, a loss that can never be made up completely and that will be felt for centuries.

This nation lost comparatively few. And while it lost some valuable lives, unfortunately, it educated millions of young men by sending them to Europe, drilling them, teaching them, giving them a broader outlook upon life.

We did not spend fifty thousand million dollars entirely for nothing. At least the country became aroused to the disgrace.

NELLIE BLY ON HUSBANDS WHO NAG

Just as Many Guilty of This Greatest Home Fault as Women---Nagger Should Be Shunned as Though He Were a Pestilence.

By Nellie Bly.

THERE are just as many husbands who nag as there are wives.

There are just as many bad husbands as there are bad wives. And the increase in both species is constant and large. Ill temper, pettishness, selfishness, brutality, jealousy and nagging have no sex. They possess the female body equally with the male, and there is no choice between them.

The quickest killer of both soul and mind, ambition and health is nagging. It is the most deadly of all sins. For the one nagged becomes, under the constant pressure, a nervous wreck unfitted for the ordinary routine of life.

A nagger should be shunned and avoided as a deadly pestilence. The signs are generally visible before marriage, so the victims are not always unaware of the fate in store for them. The purely sentimental, the silly and unthoughtful generally think that marriage will cure any premarriage faults. This delusion is based entirely upon mankish sentiments bred by yellow-back novels, in which the wonderful, unearthly heroine always reforms immediately after marriage or even by the first kiss the deep-dyed rogue and villain.

Human Beings Run to Form

Human beings run true to their own individual form. No soft-soaping, no palavering, no honeyed words, no preaching, no reproaches ever turned a grey cat into a white-haired Maltese terrier. And effect upon a human being is just the same. Those whose life work has been devoted to the reformation and uplift of the human species will confess, if they are brave enough, that there is no such thing as reformation.

The question is how to deal with persons afflicted with unhappy and damaging propensities. One can cut a tree down in an orchard when its development proves worthless, but what is to be done with a human being? Men cannot be changed or altered. They blight and wither everything that comes within the reach of their pernicious presence. Yet one cannot uproot them or destroy them.

How then shall a nagging person be handled so as to protect best those afflicted mortals who must live within that person's orbit?

"Dear Nelly Bly—What should my mother do?

"Is the bringing home of a pay envelope enough for a man and father of a large family?

"Did you ever hear of or write about 'nagging husbands?'

"The above are the questions which I wish and pray you to give me some light on.

"My mother has borne eight children in the past twenty years. Is that not enough or any woman, besides having all the household cares on her mind?

"My father says, 'No!'

"My mother is falling in health daily due to the fact that she must endure the nagging of my father every day whether it is that she wants to buy a pair of shoes for one of the children or linoleum for the kitchen floor.

"That is, if one of the children needs shoes my mother must ask my father for permission to buy them and for the money to do it with. And for so doing she gets a calling down for not having money left from her weekly allowance to buy clothing for the entire family.

"My father never did anything for his children in the way of clothing and education except to give the money, thinking and protesting that is all which is required of a husband and a father.

"I myself was deprived of a high school education because my father thought it a greater bargain to keep me at home than to employ a woman during my mother's illness.

"My mother comes from a very fine family, and I do not see how she has stood the nagging which she has endured all her married life. But I suppose she takes it just as a marital medicine.

"Miss Bly, if you want to know what kind of a man my father is you will find it all in the definition of a 'wet blanket husband.'

"Whenever my sister finds any articles about 'wet blanket husbands' she reads them to my mother, and we all say in a chorus:

"'Just like papa!'

"I hardly think you will bother about this letter, and think me a foolish girl. I am only fifteen years old, but I am on the verge of breaking down, and then, thought it would be best to get your opinion on the matter.

"Please excuse my writing. I can do better, but just now I feel nervous and can't seem to control the movements of my hand.

"FROM A DAUGHTER WHOSE CREED IS AN ANTI-NAG HUSBAND."

Does this letter sound as if the husband is a bad sort? There are indications of lack of proper appreciation of father and husband, and of a very catty disrespect for the man who is providing for that household.

Yes, the bringing home of a pay envelope should be enough for a man and father of a large family. If he cares enough for one woman and for his children to labor and bring the result of his labors home to provide them with shelter and comfort, then he is doing his duty and his share.

It is the duty of the wife to use that money properly, to see that it covers the expense of the household, to manage to live within the amount provided. That is her share of marriage life.

If she falls short of the amount necessary to provide clothing, it is her duty to manage in some way to cut down expenses so as to save a certain amount for this item in the family budget. The father has done his share in giving all that he earns and in laboring just to get the money that is to provide for his family. While he is working outside for his weekly salary, it is the work of the mother and the wife to see that that amount covers the entire expense of the household. That is her business in life.

If she then fails in her work and demands more from the husband and father than he has to give, she is just as wrong as if he would demand more from his employer than the agreed sum of his weekly salary.

The father who gives the money to provide for the clothing and education of his children is doing his duty as a husband and father. The dispensing of his money is the duty of the wife and mother.

Deserves Respect

And that father deserves respect from his wife and children. Also consideration. He should be thought of and cared for and not nagged. For on him rests the task of wresting from the world a livelihood for his family. If a stranger were providing clothing, shelter, food and education for the woman and her children, they would be most respectful in their conduct and speech. They would never think of reading articles about "wet banket husbands" and saying: "That is just like him." They would know that such disrespect would end their money allowance. But evidently, poor father is looked upon as a brand and captive slave who must not only provide the wherewithal for them to live but endure their scorn and ridicule.

If they would just forget themselves for once and their selfishness and would consider father, caring for him, loving him, showing gratitude and appreciation for the heavy task he has to perform to support them, they would feel cleaner and better, and would be higher in character and finer in breeding.

Once-Overs

IT'S TOMORROW THAT COUNTS

Why talk so much about your past misfortune?

You take the good things of life as a matter of course and if perchance you have a back-set, you talk about it unceasingly.

Everyone has painful experiences, bitter disappointments, but is it necessary to sit down and pity yourself and bore others with your sour looks and doleful tales?

Think about the things which brought you joy.

Be so happy that you will be in condition to see fortunate circumstances when they do appear.

When your mind and face are warped out of shape groaning over spilt milk and nursing foreboding thoughts, you are losing time in getting to see the pleasant things which are for you to find.

Life is not a "baby-game," where everything good is handed to you.

Don't you feel better for using your own eyes and ears, and your own efforts to discover the good things which are hidden?

The future is not necessarily dark and gloomy.

Even if it is to be, you cannot be prepared for trouble by falling down on your face, ready to be trampled over.

It is always a temptation to kick the thing under foot.

LEARNING TO USE FIRST PERSON PLURAL

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

HAPPY the person who sufficiently escapes from the isolation of egotism to get the habit of using the first person plural!

By that means comes enlargement. From the primary union of one and one in marriage, onward to the identification of oneself with the whole human world and the entire cosmos, always enlargement of individuality comes from each new and genuine relationship.

Indeed, that is the democratic test of the intrinsic worth of every relationship; namely what effect it has upon the individual.

Since democracy is the organization of society on the basis of respect for the individual, every successive grouping of individuals must benefit and fulfil every individual of the group.

If it meets that test, it is a successful democratic grouping and is likely to last.

If a given relationship violates or belittles any individual involved, that relationship is undemocratic, and will not outlast the growth in self-respect of the individual thus violated.

Explains Failures

This explains the failure of so many marriages; namely, that one or the other member of such a fatal mismating becomes convinced that the marriage menaces self-respect and hinders self-realization.

That pair has not achieved union, and cannot easily say "WE."

On the other hand, a democratically successful marriage is found to be the dependable means towards continuously increasing fulfillment for husband and wife.

Such a marriage is sacramental and holy, from the democratic viewpoint.

Its social fruitage is in the joy of saying "WE," and in the power that it brings for co-operation towards all the nobler ends of social life.

By that same test, our present economic system will succeed or fail; namely, by its growing ability to bring all its participants to the habit of using the first person plural.

Big Equivalent

Co-operation is the big equivalent of the little word "WE."

Success is assured when the employe feels himself so much a part of the concern, and when the workers in general are, so happily and with such self-respect, identified with the system, that they naturally and gladly say "WE," when asking for the institution.

The use of the first person plural is thus the democratic acid test.

One big reason for America's slow entrance into the world war was President Wilson's awareness of the lack of unity and unanimity in the varied elements of our nation, whose members had their reasons for taking sides in the conflict.

Concerning how many of your various relationships do you speak in the first person plural?

The writer can offer the case of a young woman who, ten years ago, entered the employ of a large wholesale house in the East. After five years of happy service, she entered the school and was graduated; took up the practice of law, and was duly married.

Even now, she never refers to that firm without saying "WE"! And she was not a member of the firm, but only an interested, efficient and serviceable secretary.

In how many of your relationships do you feel yourself, as it were, a member of the firm?

A REIGN OF TERROR BY BRITISH IN INDIA

By Prof. Taraknath Das,

National Executive Secretary of the Friends of India

THE latest report from India is that the two principal assistants of Mahatma Gandhi, the Ali brothers, Dr. Kitchlew and others among the leaders of the Non-co-operation Movement in India, are under arrest. Mohammad Ali is the leader of India who a few weeks ago boldly declared that during the Christmas week the people of India would declare a free and independent republic in India.

He was the chosen leader of the Indian people who some time ago went to Europe to pay respects to the Pope, and to assure him that the Hindus and Mohammedans, the Indian people at large, were engaged in freeing their country from the oppressive yoke of a foreign rule and they had nothing as hatred against any European or Christian people.

Charge Against Them

The charge on which Mohammad Ali and his brother Saukat Ali are under arrest is that they were engaged in spreading disaffection against the British Government, particularly for preaching among the Indian soldiers that they should not fight for British Imperialism against any people and particularly against those who are fighting for their country's liberty such as the people of Southern India, the frontier provinces, and he also advised the people not to recruit in the British army and not to pay taxes.

These leaders knew that the government of India which exists on violence and by use of mere brute force would take action against them, because they had the same experience of being thrown in jail during the European war because Britain suspected them of disloyalty.

Indian Revolutionary movement is gaining strength every day and the British lion is showing its claws. In August, 1920, when Mahatma Gandhi proclaimed the idea of paralyzing the "Satanic rule of Britain" in India by non-co-operation and complete boycott of everything British, the British authorities apparently did not pay much importance to the move and thought it would prove impracticable.

Started Ridicule

But within a few weeks when they saw that the movement was gaining strength they began to ridicule Mahatma Gandhi as a fanatic and his diciples as misguided blind followers; when the movement began to grow in geometric progression with the complete support of the 85 per cent. of the farmers and laborers and the most enlightened patriots of India the government began to feel afraid of the consequences undermining the very existence of the British Empire in Asia.

Under this peculiar circumstances, Earl Reading came to India, and tried to induce Mahatma Gandhi to stop his activities. Mahatma Gandhi replied by inaugurating the boycott of British cloth and raising a national fund to the extent of twelve million rupees within a month and calling for school and was graduate; took up the practice of law, and was duly married.

Even now, she never refers to that firm without saying "WE"! And she was not a member of the firm, but only an interested, efficient and serviceable secretary.
